ZEP REACHES SPAIN; RADIOS 'ALL'S WELL'

Forced 500 miles out of her course by storms, flying "blind" through thick clouds and with her radio bothered by heavy static, the super-dirigible Graf Zeppelin, bound for America from Germany, had reached the east coast of Spain shortly after noon (Boston time).

Today

Harder Than Steel.
Hear Mellon.
What Man Is Richest?
Why Brains Grow Old.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1923, by Star Co.

GIGANTIC CORPORATIONS, with surplus profits for laboratory experiments, and intelligence to use the profits, are valuable national assets.

The General Electric Company, for instance, of which Mr. Gerard Swope is president, announces a new combination of metal named "Carboly," so hard that it will cut steel and glass.

"It will cut a screw thread in a glass rod, bore a smooth hole in a block of concrete, handle porcelain on the lathe and cut the hardest steel."

That is one more step forward in industry. Perhaps, in the next century, men will begin developing their own brains, as they have developed tools, machinery, chemistry and science generally, in this and the last century.

When Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, speaks via the radio from Washington at 8 p. m. tonight, you will hear a man who has put every American in his debt.

He has paid off and retired one-half of the sixteen billions of Liberty bonds floated in the war.

Mellon is one of the ablest American business men and industrialists. Incidentally, he has made a great deal of money, and is now concentrating attention on "how to make it useful."

But don't bother him with advice.

Before President Harding appointed Mellon, he said to this writer at St. Augustine: "I am going to appoint the second richest man in the world Secretary of the Treasury. What do you think of that appointment?"

It has turned out to be a good appointment, as was predicted.

If Mellon is the SECOND richest man, who is the first? Mr. Rockefeller, perhaps, although that isn't certain. But the four richest are known: Rockefeller, Mellon, Henry Ford and George F. Baker. They all worked for what they have and all use their money well.

According to Dr. Frederick Tilney, professor of neurology at Columbia College and a really scientific man, it is not the passing of time but artificial living that causes the brain to grow old.

His address on "The Aging of the Human Brain" interests all men past 50.

Disease, alcohol unwisely used, and other foolishness, is responsible for tired, inferior old brains. Father Time is not to blame.

Have you somewhere in the back of your garage or shed an electric "Dos a Dos" automobile made by the Pope Company before 1890 and having demountable wheels.

If you have such a car, let Henry Ford know about it. He might pay you a big price for it. He needs it to defend a lawsuit for alleged infringement of patent. Many of those vehicles were sold in 1895. Find one.

New York is mildly interested because 40 of the poorer class were recently poisoned by alcohol of a deadly kind.

China does things on a bigger scale, although not with alcohol. Christian missionaries in Kansu province report more than 200,000 Chinese killed in an uprising of Mohammedans in that part of western China.

We have our religious troubles and prejudices here, but they are mild compared with those of Asia. Those Mohammedans of eastern China killed off, at one time, enough Chinese to

30,000 Get Pay Raised in Mills at Fall River

Fall River, Oct. 11 (AP)—A wage increase of 5% per cent, affecting textile workers, was announced today by James Tansey, president of the Fall River Textile Council. It will become effective next Monday.

Decision of the Fall River Cotton Manufacturers' Association to grant the increase was contained in a letter sent to Tansey by James S. Osborn, president of the association.

COLUMBIA CRASHES AS IT STARTS ON FLIGHT TO ROME; CREW IS UNHURT

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Oct. 11 (AP)—The transatlantic plane Columbia crashed on the Westbury Golf Course today a few minutes after taking the air on its projected flight to Rome.

Roger O. Williams, pilot, and Pietro Bonelli, navigator, escaped without any injury.

One wheel of the plane cut off and the wing crept under, tearing and the ship suffered general strain. It tipped up on one wing potnt but did not turn over.

The Columbia took off at 11:55 a. m. with great difficulty because of the excessive weight of its fuel load. It did get in the air, however, but was unable to gain altitude.

It struggled low over that gully between Roosevelt and Curtiss Fields where Rene Fonck's plane crashed and burned two years ago, and then began to settle steadily to earth.

Fearing a possible upset with resulting fire Bonelli kicked the dump

10:30 A. M.—Sighted over the Mediterranean, west of Marseilles.

Zeppelin Bulletins

Montelimar, Rhone Valley, France, Oct. 11 (AP)—The Graf Zeppelin, heading in a southwest direction, passed over Montelimar, which is about 80 miles directly south of Lyons, at 9:05 a. m., Eastern Standard Time. The dirigible was flying at a height of approximately 900 feet. The weather was very cloudy and the visibility was poor. Montelimar is about 80 miles north of the mouth of the Rhone and about 90 miles on an airline from Marseilles.

Paris, Oct. 11 (AP)—Dr. Hugo Eckener, according to messages which reached Paris from points along the route, followed the valley of the River Rhone to the Mediterranean coast. He kept so closely to the winding river that it is thought bad visibility prevented his sighting other landmarks to reduce mileage.

Basel, Switzerland, Oct. 11—The Graf Zeppelin was sighted above this city at 9:33 o'clock this morning (3:33 a. m., Boston time).

Berlin, Oct. 11 (INS)—Word was received here that the Zeppelin flew over Dijon, France, at 11 a. m., heading towards Lyons.

Lyons, France, Oct. 11 (INS)—It was raining when the Zeppelin passed over this city at 12:25 o'clock this afternoon. Crowds in the streets watched the course of the ship. (Lyons is 265 miles from Friedrichshafen.)

Messages sent from the huge lighter-than-air craft during her progress across Switzerland and down the Rhone valley, over Belfort, Dijon, Lyons, Montelimar and Marseilles, France, told of reduced speed because of the adverse weather conditions but said that all was well aboard.

One message from the craft as her engines churned the cloud-thick atmosphere above Lyons was picked up by a powerful radio set in New York police headquarters.

At 10:30 a. m. (Boston time) the Zeppelin passed over the French coast line at Marseilles and headed over the Mediterranean for the Spanish coast at Barcelona.

Veers to Mediterranean

She was swinging into the southern route, her course having been veered to the south at Dijon.

The commander's wisdom in changing to the southern route was evident when weather reports began to come in of storms off the west coast of France that compelled more than 50 fishing craft to run to shelter.

Weather reports were that the atmosphere was clearing from the Azores east to Portugal and by the time the Zeppelin swings out over the Atlantic she should have fair weather.

Because of the storm and fogs, the big ship's speed had been reduced to an average of between 55 and 60 miles an hour, which average, if not raised, would delay her arrival at Lakehurst, N. J., until late Sunday.

"A clear crossing all the way over," was the reassuring

GIRL, 17, ENDS LIFE FOR LOVE OF MARRIED MAN

Heartbroken because her suitor, a married man with whom she was recently arrested, was said to have become reconciled with his wife, Mary Medonia, 17, shot herself through the heart in her home in Dudley rd., Newton Center, today. She died almost instantly.

A short time later her 18-year-old brother, Philip, announced he would "get" the man involved, and leaping into the automobile of Medical Examiner George L. West, roared away from his house.

On Boylston st., Brookline, while speeding from 60 to 75 miles an hour, Young Medonia was overtaken by

BOMB THREAT FOR KIN OF MRS. WILLEBRANDT

Los Angeles, Oct. 11 (AP)—A threatened bombing of the ranch home of the parents of Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant United States attorney-general, caused police to throw a special guard about the premises at Temple, Cal., today.

The warning of vengeance was received by the couple, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Walker, in a letter attacking Mrs. Willebrandt for speeches she made in the East relating to prohibition and the Democratic party.

Police also were informed that Kathleen Norris, noted woman novelist would be "molested" if she attempted to speak here in behalf of Herbert Hoover.

Mrs. Norris addressed an audience at Fresno, after she received three telephone calls and a letter, police were informed, warning her not to appear. She planned to deliver an address here today.

ZEPP FIGHTS OFF STORM, THEN PASSES FROM FRANCE FOR U. S.

HUGE CRAFT IS SIGHTED BY CROWDS IN MANY CITIES

prediction of the New York weather bureau, however. This forecast covered only the Atlantic.

First messages from the dirigible were received as the ship passed over Belfort and over Dijon, both in France.

At Dijon, her pilot veered the ship to the south over Lyons and headed toward Marseilles on the Mediterranean.

The ship was sighted over Montelimar, France, at 9 a. m. Boston time, and was following the line of the Rhone river valley.

The first radio message was received from the Zeppelin at 9:26 a. m. (3:26 a. m. Boston time). It said:

"All well on board. Making average speed of 100 kilometers hourly."

Half an hour later came the following radio message:

"Over Belfort. Now making 120 kilometers hourly."

A third message, received at 11 a. m. (6 a. m. Boston time), said the Zeppelin was passing over Dijon and was headed toward Lyons.

Meanwhile officials at Lakehurst, N. J., destination of the German craft, calculated that the big Zeppelin probably would better her expected flying time of 70 hours and might cut down the time even as low as 60 hours, bringing her to Lakehurst at 1:52 p. m. (Boston time) Saturday.

Thousands Cheer as Big Airship Starts Sea Trip

By OTTO D. TOLISCHUS

International News Service Staff Correspondent

Friedrichshafen, Oct. 11—Starting on its epic maiden voyage to America at 7:52 a. m. (1:52 a. m. Boston time), Germany's newest super-dirigible, Graf (Count) Zeppelin, the first transatlantic passenger airship ever built, was speeding westward today.

As the ship circled the field in a last farewell at a speed of 50 miles an hour with 20 passengers and a crew of 40 aboard, a roaring cheer went up from a crowd of several thousand proud and joyous Germans. In the throng were also many visitors from other lands to bid the silver-white air liner Godspeed.

Thousands of thunderous "hocks" and "gut glueckx" and "aug wiedersehns" interspersed with the strains of "Deutschland, Deutschland, Uber Alles" reverberated through the morning air as the ship headed southward over Lake Constance and disappeared in the early morning mists.

The ship made a beautiful picture as it soared over the lake with the Alps for a distant background.

Weather conditions were not of the best, but as good as could be expected at this time of the year. There was a light ground wind which helped the air liner climb into the air.

The enthusiasm of the throng at the field was only a small part of the thrill that today goes through all Germany, which glories in the Zeppelin as the symbol of its own national resurgence from the effects of the war.

Four years ago tomorrow, the Los Angeles, now a United States navy dirigible, started under different conditions. Anxiety was in the air; the Los Angeles was being sent across in payment of a war debt. Today there was complete confidence and pride.

Heads for Lakehurst!

In getting away, in spite of the difficulties of German bureaucracy, and with its fuel supply of the new "blue gas," the Graf Zeppelin triumphed in a double race. It beat the English competitors, the two monster airships being built by Condr. Burney, and also the giant flying yacht which the German Lufthansa planned to send across the ocean this autumn.

The first goal of the Graf Zeppelin on this maiden voyage is Lakehurst, N. J., where it will greet its sister ship, the Los Angeles.

Officials at the field estimated that the Zeppelin would reach Lakehurst in about 60 hours. This would bring it to its destination Saturday afternoon.

The Graf Zeppelin is commanded by Dr. Hugo Eckener, who also built and guided across the ocean the Los Angeles.

Lieut.-Commander Rosendahl, commander of the Los Angeles, is a passenger aboard the "Count."

Altogether, three nations, Germany, America and England, are represented among the passengers. England is represented by a woman—the only woman on board—lady Drummond Hay, equally noted for her beauty and her journalistic achievements, and Robert Hartmann, M-G-M news and International Newsreel photographer.

Safe Aboard Craft.

Others among the passengers are Karl H. von Wiegand, European representative of the Hearst newspapers; Ludwig Dittmann of the Berlin Academy of Art; Theodore Matelkoff, another noted German artist; Rolf Brandt of the Berliner Lokalanzeiger; Bernard Kellermann, of the Vossische geitung; Robert Hatumann, International Newsreel photographer; Frederic Gilfallen, Robert Reiner of Weehawken, N. J., and Count Bradenstein-Zeppelin.

The remaining passengers are: Herr Grezynski, Prussian minister of interior; Herr Bradenburg, chief of the German air ministry; Herr Kuss, member of the German Reichstag; Herr Mayer, photographer for Herr von Tyscka, director of an insurance company; Herr Opitz of the Zeiss optical works, and Herr Berk of the Telefunken Wireless Company.

Hundreds of applicants stormed the Zeppelin offices during the preceding months in an effort to become the first regular transatlantic air passengers in history, but only a lucky and much envied few were chosen.

"Don't call them daring, whatever you do," Dr. Eckener laughingly remarked just before the start. "They are just as safe and just as comfortable as they would be on a big ocean liner—if not more so.

"That is the point. This ship is a regular passenger ship, intended to open up a commercial transatlantic air line. But you cannot run a commercial ocean line for heroes only. Therefore, this ship is built for the general traveling public.

"Nobody likes to take his life in his hands whenever he goes on a trip. Well, he need not when he boards this vessel. Our special trips are just to show how safe the boat really is."

The weather had turned chilly as the starting hour neared and Dr. Eckener paced up and down in front of the ship smoking a short pipe.

"Once we are out of this miserable hole we will be all right," he said, referring to the weather. "I cannot say anything about our course now, but we shall probably go over the Azores. The weather is much worse than it was in 1924, but we will cheat the weather god. We have enough fuel on board for five days and nights and can cover a distance of 14,000 kilometers.

Ready With the Dawn

"There is nothing to worry about. Over the ocean we can fly at an altitude of from 300 to 350 meters. We shall try to keep within the cover of the clouds, because the sun's rays would cause a loss of gas.

"We shall be in radio touch with steamers and can tell the velocity and direction of the wind and general weather conditions from them. Over mid-Atlantic the atmospheric electrical conditions may interfere with the radio, but that need cause no fear.

"We have neither parachutes nor life-saving apparatus aboard. What would be the use of carrying them? In the worst case we could drift upon the ocean for days."

It was still dawn when Mr. Eckener ordered the ship cleared for the start. The crew scampered aboard and was immediately lost in the interior and the five gondolas of the mighty monster.

"There had been some slight changes in the interior, the chief one being the reduction of the size of the ventilators so that the crew would not suffer so much from the cold.

When "all aboard" was sounded the passengers lined up along the windows of the front cabin that seems to grow out of the body of the craft. The baggage of the passengers had already been stowed away. This was confined to 44 pounds per passenger, though it was understood that Lady Drummond Hay was allowed to exceed this limit.

When all the passengers were on board the ship was weighed and "found not wanting." Then the sand bags that held it down were shaken off and the water ballast adjusted. It floated loosely within its anchorage.

Women Cheer Start

"Los," shouted Dr. Eckener, and hundreds of hands gripped the landing ropes and slowly the ship was floated from the hall, clearing the edges of the roof by inches, so it seemed. Tight ropes fastened to the wheels that ran on rails insured a straight course for the ship so it would not bump the narrow walls.

Only a few were admitted to watch these preliminaries. But outside thousands who had waited since midnight were milling about upon the field excitedly waiting to see the huge ship start her epic flight. There were many women in the multitude as well as foreigners and a whole army of newspaper photographers and reporters.

A hush fell over the crowd as the silver gray ship stuck its nose from the hangar at 7:15 a. m. with the flaming red block letters "Graf Zeppelin" printed upon it.

What followed was so simple and quick it almost surprised the crowd. The ship had cleared the hangar and its 763 feet covered half the length of the field, held firmly in the grip of 300 men.

The passengers were still chatting with friends and shaking hands. The crowd was milling about the ship. Suddenly Dr. Eckener, standing on the bridge at the very front of the front cabin in uniform, gave the command "hoch."

Three hundred pairs of husky arms "tossed the ship into the air." Engine bells rang; the motors began to roar. The propellers whirred. The swish of a water cascade relieving the ship of its last earthly ballast joined the symphony of sound.

Almost before the crowd realized it, the ship was high above them. It looked like a great cloud. The passengers could be seen waving hats and handkerchiefs in farewell.

Then the enthusiasm broke loose. Cheer after cheer went up. Hats flew into the air. Thousands of hands were stretched heavenward. Some ran across the field to follow the course of the ship.

GOVERNOR, MAYOR SEND ZEPP GREETINGS

THE BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN radioed the following greeting from Gov. Fuller to the commander of the Graf Zeppelin:

Dr. Hugo Eckener,
Graf Zeppelin (via Chatham):

On behalf of the citizens of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, I wish you a most successful flight from Friedrichshafen to the United States. You are cordially invited and urged to make your first stop, if only for a short time, at the Boston Airport even though your objective is New York. You have our best wishes,

Cordially yours,
Alvan T. Fuller, Governor.

GOVERNOR FULLER

MAYOR NICHOLS today sent the following message, through the Boston Evening American and Western Union, to the super-dirigible Graf Zeppelin:

Dr. Hugo Eckener,
Graf Zeppelin (via Chatham):

Boston extends best wishes for your successful flight across the Atlantic and the hope that you may so direct your plans as to include Boston in your voyage.

Malcolm E. Nichols,
Mayor of Boston.

3 HUB MESSAGES SENT TO BIG ZEPP IN AIR

The Boston Evening American, through Western Union, today sent three messages direct to the transatlantic air voyagers, 60 in number, now en route to America aboard the dirigible, the Graf Zeppelin.

They were from Governor Alvan T. Fuller, Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols and John S. Lawrence, president of the New England Council and were directed to Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the craft.

Their words were sent out of the Boston Evening American "city room" by Charles Mooney, veteran Western Union telegraph operator assigned to this newspaper, and at Chatham, on Cape Cod, were relayed through the ether to the airship.

These messages, forming a link between the people of Boston and a transatlantic aircraft, wrote an epochal chapter in the amazing history of aerial navigation.

Until the Graf Zeppelin arrives at Lakehurst, N. J., where she is due Sunday morning, Western Union will accept messages to the daring travelers.

Her father had telegraphed to her last night pleading with her "not to go as her mother would die of anxiety."

Mrs. Eckener, wife of the commander, ran alongside of the ship, despite her advanced age, waving good-bye to her husband. Dr. Eckener, however, refused to leave the bridge of the ship to look back.

After the mail had been taken aboard, the ship's kitchen was freshly supplied with veal, pork, chicken, sausages, eggs, vegetables, fruit, puddings, tea, coffee, cocoa, beer, wine, schnapps, and champagne. Meals will be served by two stewards. Smoking will not be allowed. This will work a hardship on some of the passengers.

Dr. Eckener said that the exact route the ship would follow over the Atlantic would depend upon the weather.

"This is one of the advantages of airships," said Dr. Eckener. "It is fast enough to dodge a storm and insure a safe passage."

A special weather organization has been created to supply the ship with the best weather bulletins. They will be sent by radio as the great air liner carries a wireless outfit.

On the first half of the trip the ship will be supplied mainly by the German weather observatories of Lindenberg, which guided Gen. Umberto Nobile on his stormy ride across Europe last spring, and by Hamburg. Later it will get in touch with the weather stations at Horta, in the Azores, and toward the end of the trip with the weather stations of America, which have promised co-operation.

Besides this it will receive the regular weather reports from steamers on the ocean and arrange its course accordingly.

She has been shown to several European cities in tests for her epoch-making flight begun today when she set out to cross the Atlantic westward.

EXPECT ZEPP IN U. S. SATURDAY AFTERNOON

Lakehurst, N. J., Oct. 11 (INS)—Word that the German air dirigible, Graf Zeppelin, had started on its flight from Friedrichshafen was the signal for spirited activity today at the naval air station here. The Graf Zeppelin will be berthed here on its arrival.

The navy dirigible Los Angeles, which returned last night from a trip to San Antonio, will be moored at the mast, so the German airship can be housed inside the big hangar. Several smaller dirigibles and blimps have been moved to make room for the Graf Zeppelin.

When the news reached here early today that the Graf Zeppelin had started officers called ground crews together and plans for the reception of the giant dirigible were rehearsed. Arrangements to receive and house the visitors have been in the making for several days.

It is expected the German airship will arrive here about 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, though bad weather or any other trouble might delay arrival until Sunday morning.

New York Official Reception Planned

New York, Oct. 11—Plans were completed today by Grover A. Whalen, chairman of the Mayor's committee on reception to distinguished guests, for the reception of the Graf Zeppelin.

The committee will meet the airship at Lakehurst and officially greet those who participated in the inauguration of an air passenger line between the United States and Germany.

Officers passengers and crew will be taken by train to Jersey City and then on the steamer Macom and come to Pier A, Battery. With mounted and motorcycle police escort the party will proceed to City Hall for the official reception by Mayor Walker. A luncheon at the Advertising Club will follow.

At night there will be a dinner in their honor and a midnight performance for them at the Ziegfeld Theater.

A trip around Manhattan Island aboard the Macom has been arranged for the next day. Then there will be a dinner of the American Chamber of Commerce at the Astor Hotel.

Zeppelin's Start in Bad Weather Surprises France

Paris, Oct. 11 (AP)—With bad weather reported to be general throughout France surprise was expressed in French aviation circles today that Dr. Hugo Eckener had chosen so unfavorable a time to start for America in his new dirigible Graf Zeppelin.

The airship would have to fly very low if it were to be seen at all over France. There was a steady rain, clouds hung low and visibility was restricted to within a few hundred meters of the earth.

DENNE Zepp Call On Air; Has An "S O S Wave"

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—The Graf Zeppelin in its flight across the Atlantic to Lakehurst, N. J., will use the radio call DENNE.

In case help is needed she will use a long wavelength of 600 meters.

The dirigible also will use a long wavelength of 1800 to 2400 meters for regular broadcasting.

ZEPPELIN DEPARTS WITH SLIGHT RENT IN CANVAS

Friedrichshafen, Oct. 11 (INS)—The dirigible Graf Zeppelin left for America today with a slight rent in the outside canvas covering of its body. One of the workers giving the ship a final looking-over last night dropped a tool which caused the damage. The rent was not discovered until this morning and Dr. Eckener, the ship's commander, decided it was too slight to delay the start for repairs.

NORTH GERMAN LLOYD LINERS TO GUIDE ZEPP

Bremen, Germany, Oct. 11 (AP)—The North German Lloyd has instructed its Atlantic liners to make every effort to communicate by wireless with the Graf Zeppelin in order to give her her position and to report on weather conditions.

ECKENER CARRIES $2500; $400 TO BE GIVEN CREW

Friedrichshafen, Oct. 11 (INS)—Dr. Hugo Eckener, commodore of the Graf (Count) Zeppelin, carried with him $2500 in United States currency. Of this sum he will give a $10 bill to each of the 40 members of the crew when Lakehurst is reached.

Two Previous Trips by Dirigibles Over Atlantic

By The Associated Press

Los Angeles (formerly the ZR-3) left Friedrichshafen October 12, 1924, and arrived at Lakehurst, N. J., October 15, 1924, completing the 5066-mile journey in 81 hours.

R-34 (British dirigible) arrived Roosevelt Field, Long Island, July 6, 1919, from East Fortune, Eng., completing 3500-mile voyage in 59 hours.

R-34 left Long Island, July 10, 1919, on return trip to England, arriving at Pulham, July 12, in 31 hours.

PRIMPING LADY DELAYS HOP OF ZEPP

Friedrichshafen, Oct. 11—The true femininity of the only woman passenger on board the Zeppelin—Lady Drummond Hay—held up the start of the airship 15 minutes this morning.

Meanwhile frantic telephone calls were being made from the hangar to her hotel. Finally she arrived, to find he ship's officers holding their watches.

She rushed aboard breathlessly, then exclaimed: "Heavens, my coat!" She refused to leave without it, as it had been made especially for the Zeppelin voyage.

There was another frantic call to the hotel and soon an automobile raced from Friedrichshafen across the landing field and the coat was handed to her while the ship was leaving its hangar.

London, Oct. 11—Mrs. S. T. Leithbridge, mother of Lady Drummond Hay, who is a passenger on the Graf Zeppelin, was in a state of great anxiety for the safety of her daughter, Mrs. Leithbridge, who tried vainly to dissuade her daughter from taking the trip, said to reporters at Hampstead:

"I think the danger is tremendous and I am in a terrible state about Grace."

In order not to worry her daughter, Mrs. Leithbridge sent a radio message to Lady Hay, saying: "You are forgiven. Much love."

Mrs. Leithbridge said she had had a reassuring reply from the Zeppelin.

List of Passengers on Zepp's Ocean Flight

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Oct. 11 (AP)—Twenty passengers, including three Americans, and a crew of 40 were aboard the Graf Zeppelin when the airship started for Lakehurst, N. J.

The passengers were:

Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, U. S. N.

Robert Reiner of Wehawken, N. J.

Frederick Gilfillan, an American living in Lucerne, Switzerland.

Lady Grace Drummond Hay

Col. Emilio Herrera, who is planning a passenger airship service from Spain to South America.

Albert Grassmuki, Prussian minister of interior, representing the German Federal Council.

Ernst Brandenburg of the federal ministry of transportation.

Dr. Denkendorf, meteorologist of the Aeronautical Institute.

Dr. Krueger of the Aeronautical Testing Institute.

Count Brandenstein-Zeppelin, son-in-law of the late Count von Zeppelin.

Earl von Tyszka, representing insurance interests.

Walter Kleffel of the Ullstein Publishing Company.

Theo Matejka, a cartoonist

Two motion picture cameramen.

MANY PLANES TO WELCOME GERMANS

Plans were completed today by army and civilian fliers at the East Boston airport to meet the Graf Zeppelin off the Massachusetts coast and escort the dirigible over metropolitan Boston on its way to New York.

In the event of its arrival over Massachusetts in daylight Lieut. Donald G. Duke, officer commanding the army aerial forces at East Boston, will send up six regular army planes. Five National Guard airships will greet the visitor.

If the huge super-dirigible comes within sight of the Bay State during the night, Olcott S. Payson, director of Skyways, Inc., planned to send two Wright Whirlwind Brougan planes equipped with night landing and navigation lights, to form its escort.

While these plans were under way at East Boston, orders were issued by Admiral Philip A. Andrews at the Boston Navy Yard commanding every naval radio operator in this district to stand by his post for messages over the two wave lengths used by the Zeppelin.

It was also unofficially announced that all commanders of naval craft in New England waters be notified to keep in touch with the German craft by radio to render any necessary assistance.

The War Department has also authorized the commander of the second corps area (New York) to order any planes available in his command to escort the Graf Zeppelin on its arrival in the United States, but also to take every precaution to prevent interference with the dirigible's flight. The order said if the dirigible arrived at night airplanes should not be used as an escort because of possible danger.

Frau Eckener Listens in for Zeppelin messages

Friedrichshafen, Oct. 11 (INS)—Mrs. Hugo Eckener, whose husband and son are on board the Zeppelin, was calm and confident today, but, like thousands of others throughout Germany, kept close to the radio to receive the broadcast messages of the ship's progress.

Asked if she felt any fears for the safety of her husband and son, she replied:

"If one is afraid one doesn't show it. But I am absolutely confident they are perfectly safe. I have no fears."

GRAF IS OFFICIALLY ZEPPELIN NO. 27

Friedrichshafen, Oct. 11 (INS)—The Graf (Count) Zeppelin, now on its way to the United States, is the 117th airship built by the Zeppelin Airship Building Co. Its license number, painted in big black letters on its tail piece, is D L ZEP 127. Ten numbers were skipped during the war for military reasons to make it appear Germany possessed more Zeppelins than she actually did have.

Bulletins

Berlin, Oct. 11 (AP)—The German newspaper Nachtausgabe today received a direct dispatch from its correspondent aboard the Graf Zeppelin after the ship had crossed into France. The message said that a French military plane had accompanied the dirigible for a time near Beancon soon after it had crossed the frontier from Germany.

ZEPP TRIP WILL TAKE 72 HOURS, KELLOGG IS TOLD

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP)—The State and Navy Departments received messages today telling of the departure of the Graf Zeppelin. The American consul at Stuttgart, Germany, advised the State Department that the voyage would require 72 hours. Neither Secretary Wilbur nor Secretary Kellogg will be able to greet the dirigible crew because they will be filling other engagements. Assistant Secretary Warner of the navy and Rear Admiral Moffett, chief of naval aeronautics, will be at Lakehurst.

WARM WEATHER FOR HOLIDAY FORECAST

Holiday football games will be played under conditions better suited for baseball than for pigskin chasing, the weatherman said today. The thermometer jumped 20 degrees in three hours this forenoon and will be flirting with 80 tomorrow, he predicted.

Forecast for Boston: Fair tonight and Friday; warmer tonight; moderate south and southwest winds.

HORAN OBEYS EXPULSION ORDER

with the demand of the French authorities that he must quit the country by Thursday as a penalty for having transmitted to Universal Service the story revealing the contents of the secret Anglo-French naval agreement.

A few hours following his departure the French foreign office announced that the enforcement of the expulsion threat had been postponed. It was said that a further investigation of the incident would be made by the foreign office.

The Horan case continued today to be generously commented on by the Paris papers, being divided in their opinions as to the wisdom and justice of the government action.

"The deportation action is sheer madness," said L'Action Francaise. "It will serve to antagonize the entire corps of American journalists in France."

TOO MANY LEAKS

According to L'Oeuvre, Horan should not be blamed for his part in the matter but says: "the blame rests with the altogether too many leaks in our public offices."

Editor Alfred Oulman in Le Petit Bleu, administration organ, says:

"The Horan affair must be looked at from the French viewpoint rather than the professional. For a foreign journalist enjoying the hospitality of France to procure for himself an official document which he utilizes in his country against France, commits a deed which is inadmissable and intolerable.

"If a French journalist had done the same thing here he would have been prosecuted for divulging a document involving the safety of the state. What is intolerable from a French journalist cannot be tolerated from a foreign journalist residing in our country.

"MUDDLE THE WHOLE CASE"

"Horan's act was the act of a political agent in the service of a foreign group hostile to France rather than the act of a journalist who wishes to inform quickly and exactly the American papers which he represents in Paris.

"Would America tolerate in their own country such an action on the part of a French journalist? The French Government does well to expel this journalist. American journalists cannot unite in fellowship with one of their number expelled from France for a fault which is inexcusable."

COCK ROBIN

THE London Evening Standard Tuesday published the cartoon printed above under the heading, "COCK ROBIN." Drawn by David Low, great political cartoonist, the picture was sent to the Boston Evening American by radio for publication in its columns today. The figures in the cartoon are as follows:

In the left bottom corner is Mussolini, next to him President Coolidge, and the last figure is Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin.

The Evening Standard, owned by Lord Beaverbrook, printed the text of the Anglo-French naval pact which was revealed to the world by Harold J. T. Horan, Paris correspondent of Universal Service and the Boston Evening American.

THESE are features of the big German Zeppelin, greatest aircraft in the world, in her flight to America:

She cost approximately $1,000,000, the amount being raised by popular subscription in Germany.

Maximum speed is above 80 miles an hour.

Carries crew of 40 and 20 passengers, including first woman passenger, in a dirigible transatlantic flight, Lady Grace Drummond Hay, English society figure.

Total weight of the ship, loaded and in the air on trip, is 103 tons, divided as follows: Food, 1,047 pounds; mail, 13 sacks, 730 pounds; fuel, 14 tons; oil, 3840 pounds; water ballast, 887,750 cubic feet or 68,111,875 pounds; passengers and baggage, 4420 pounds; crew and baggage, 6188 pounds; parcel post, 1186 pounds.

German Press Criticises France in Horan Case

Berlin, Oct. 11—Caustic criticism of the entire handling of the Franco-British secret naval agreement by London and Paris is expressed by the German press today, as the result of the detention of Harold J. T. Horan, Universal Service correspondent, in Paris by French officials, as a result of his part in exposing the terms of the secret naval agreement.

Under the heading "Blundering Secret Diplomacy—One Stupidity After Another," the Democratic Morgenpost comments:

"Both Governments concluded the naval agreement according to the oldest formulas of secret diplomacy. Neither Parliament nor public was informed, and probably not even the members of the Government.

"In his speech at Geneva Briand cautiously avoided saying what the agreement was.

"He had every reason for this. The reason was shown when the secret agreement, or at least a part of it, was published in the American newspapers and it was seen that the agreement had a very definite point. One side of this point was directed against America. That was England's interest.

"The other side of it was directed against Italy. That was the French interest.

"The owner of the Hearst newspapers, Mr. William Randolph Hearst, has come to the front with a strong statement. Mr. Hearst could have added that by rights the French people should be grateful for the publication, for only through it did the French people learn into what complications it had been brought by its government.

"The consequences of the publication were naturally anything but pleasant to the French and English governments. The English government got a note from America, and preferred to be glad that the note was polite and not peppery. Now the French government gets a note from Italy and pretends to be calm while really it is very uncomfortable.

"These are the consequences of secret diplomacy, which so often has hurled nations into disaster. Declaring that the Horan affair is affecting ever wider circles," the Continental Germania takes up the cudgel against the French action against the Universal correspondent.

London Papers Think Horan Unjustly Treated

London, Oct. 10—The victimization of Harold J. T. Horan, Paris correspondent of Universal Service, for his exclusive dispatch giving first authentic details of the Anglo-French naval agreement, continued to excite unfavorable comment in the English newspapers.

The Conservative Evening Standard remarks:

"Among the press representatives of all nationalities in Paris, feeling is running strong over the unjust treatment accorded Mr. Horan. No body takes seriously the absurd stories about robberies at the Quai d'Orsay and the suborning of French officials.

"The view is taken here that the French foreign office's letter was published because the Quai d'Orsay wished it to be published, and its publication was only one of a long series of calculated indiscretions.

The Manchester Guardian says: "The leakage of official information through the French press is so common that as a rule it scarcely attracts attention. It appears that such leakages generally happen by design rather than by accident."

Commenting on the British cabinet's decision to publish the terms of the Anglo-French naval agreement, the Daily Express says: "Bit by bit from this source and from that, by the courtesy of the Hearst press and by published official comments of other governments, the world knows pretty well what it was all about."

30,000 MILL HANDS RAISED

Negotiations had been conducted between the two groups since the New Bedford strike was settled on a 5 per cent wage cut basis.

Inasmuch as there was a 10 per cent cut in Fall River last year, the wage scale in the two cities remains approximately the same.

Included among the operatives receiving the increase are 5000 employes of the American Printing Company, which is not a member of the 'manufacturers' association, but which has agreed to restore the 2 per cent increase.

GIRL, 17, ENDS LIFE FOR LOVE

hauled by a policeman, who on learning the circumstances took him back to his home without pressing charges.

The girl, daughter of Guiseppe Madonia, builder, was arrested in New York with Mario Sinatra of Porter st., East Boston, and both were scheduled to appear in East Boston court on October 22.

The shooting was done with an ancient revolver, property of her brother-in-law Joseph Milal, who with his wife makes his home with the Madonias. A note in which Mary explained the reason for her act, was turned over to the medical examiner.

Her father had just left Mary's room after making an impassioned plea for her to tell the truth about her visit to New York to clear his honor and hers, when she shot herself.

In a statement which Mary wrote out for the court, she said Sinatra had forced her to make the trip. He had been meeting her every morning and afternoon, the girl wrote, had sometimes taken her in shows and escorted her to her home. She said he threatened to kill her if she told what he had done, and that he would get a divorce and marry her.

Last night Milal went home and told Mary that he had been to East Boston where he saw Sinatra and his wife together and that they had made up their differences. Mrs. Sinatra had caused her husband's arrest on a charge of non-support.

After the shooting the girl's father declared he thought she was a victim of drugs and demanded an autopsy, but the medical examiner said there was no indication of narcotics.

valve to lighten ship but it had just been repaired for a leak and would not work.

Williams made a forced landing on the golf links adjoining Curtiss Field, close beside a sand trap and hummed in by bunkers.

The plane plunged and rolled on the soft turf and the left wheel snapped off.

The Columbia ground looped on the broken wheel and tipped gently but came to a stop without overturning.

Williams and Bonelli climbed out of the cockpit unharmed but sadly disappointed. A cursory inspection of the plane left little hope of another take-off today.

Williams took it accident good naturedly, remarking: "Too bad, $28 of food has gone bad."

The plane was taken to the Levine factory, Long Island City, for repairs.

Bill Lannin, owner of Roosevelt Field, refunded $250 that owner Levine had paid as the take-off fee, from Italy shortly.

AIR LINER HAS TROUBLE WITH ITS RADIO

Norddeich, Germany, Oct. 11 (AP)—The radio station here had the greatest difficulty in communicating with the Graf Zeppelin today because of static interference.

The big airship continuously asked for weather information and said it was having trouble in understanding even the most powerful European radio stations.

Large American stations were heard intermittently but not distinctly enough to understand what they were sending.

After leaving Belfort the Zeppelin ran into low hanging clouds in a deep stratum and had to navigate solely by compass for some time.

Coolidge, Hoover, Smith Invited for Air Trip

Friedrichshafen, Oct. 11 (INS)—"We would be honored and delighted if President Coolidge would consent to take a trip in our ship," said Dr. Hugo Eckener, director of the flight of the Graf Zeppelin, before leaving here today for Lakehurst, N. J.

"This same invitation extends to the presidential candidates— Herbert Hoover and Governor Smith of New York."

Numerous American cities have asked that the Graf visit them and he intends to make as many special flights as he can. Among the cities tentatively upon the list are New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Syracuse, N. Y.; Detroit, Mich.; Chicago and Cincinnati.

Filene's Automatic Bargain BASEMENT

A price tag that speaks volumes!

Not only to us, but to our customers who have learned the workings of this unique store.

No hieroglyphics, no secret codes or slurred figures, but everything written in plain letters of the English language.

Our price tag is our autobiography — first of all its color denotes the size of the garment—it tells plainly when the merchandise to which it is attached went on sale — its price — and when any automatic reductions are taken they are clearly marked—first reduction in price, second reduction in price, etc., all plainly indicated.

No price tags are ever changed — none are ever removed (unless torn off by accident, when they are speedily replaced).

And furthermore—a prize of $1 is paid to any customer noting any failure to take a price reduction when due or any other error in a price tag!

Isn't it unusual to be able to look at a price tag and learn the history of each garment—and to see just when the automatic reduction takes place? Just another interesting thing that makes Filene's Basement a different kind of a store. Walk through daily!

SHAW FIGHTS PRINTING OF "SHAVIAN" LETTERS

London, Oct. 11 (AP)—The sale to a New York bookdealer of a number of letters written by George Bernard Shaw was announced in the Daily Mail today and the paper quoted the author as saying every legal means would be taken to prevent their publication.

The letters were written by Shaw over a period of ten years to an unnamed person. They treat of a variety of subjects, the paper said, "each one being a Shavian essay." They were sold to Gabriel Wells of New York and are now on their way to the United States.

HOOVER IN HUB TALK TO BOOM FOREIGN TRADE

Washington, Oct. 11 (INS)—A Pledge to revise the tariff upward to protect American industry against shifting economic tides and a promise to use every agency of the government to promote foreign trade, in order to open new markets for American manufacturers, will feature Herbert Hoover's speech at Boston Monday night.

The Republican nominee will devote his address to an analysis of business conditions, the effect of the tariff upon industry and labor, and proclaim the steps necessary to keep America prosperous. He will maintain that the tariff, being partly responsible for prosperous industrial conditions, should be kept in friendly hands and that the Republican party must be given the task of revising it to meet changing conditions if the nation is to continue prosperous.

VALUE OF FOREIGN TRADE

Hoover will devote a large part of his address to foreign trade. He will cite numerous statistics to show that America's foreign commerce has grown by leaps and bounds under a Republican administration. He will pledge the government's aid in promoting new business abroad and argue that an expanding foreign trade is necessary to provide.

Reports, circulated by Democratic spokesmen, that Hoover owns oil lands in Mexico and an oil concession in the Republic of Colombia caused some excitement at Republican headquarters. The reports were denied vigorously by Henry J. Allen, publicity director.

"Mr. Hoover has never owned an acre of oil concession or had a dollar invested directly or indirectly in any business of any kind in the Republic of Colombia and he does not own a dollars' worth of stock or an acre of oil land or any other property in the Republic of Mexico," Allen said.

EDWARDS FOR HOOVER

Hoover meanwhile expressed pleasure at receiving the endorsement of Major General Clarence R. Edwards, who commanded the famous 26th Division in the World War, and with an endorsement by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers. Lewis will speak in behalf of Hoover on October 17th, over the Republican radio hookup.

"You are the outstanding man to solve the economic problems which now confront the country," Edwards wired Hoover, "and your championship of the present tariff and the success which will attend you, assure to us a safe defense against the menace of a competitive tariff which would certainly turn the interests of the country over to the cheap labor of foreign lands."

SMITH SPECIAL SWINGS INTO VIRGINIA

En Route With Governor Smith to North Carolina, Oct. 11 (INS)—Governor Smith dipped into Dixie today—country not usually penetrated by Democratic candidates for the presidency.

At Richmond, Va., which was reached on time, Governor Smith was given a tumultuous reception by a tremendous throng.

His Southern foray is due to the insistent urging of Democratic leaders that he come. They figure that his mere presence below the Mason-Dixon line—even though there is no campaign haranguing—will do much to offset the party defections, tales of which have poured into Democratic national headquarters ever since the Houston convention.

The 10-day trip upon which the Democratic nominee is now engaged represents Governor Smith's bow to the South, and toward the politically doubtful border states that border it on the north.

Before he returns to Albany, ten days hence, he will have traversed eight states in the South and border country and will have delivered three speeches—at Louisville, Ky., Saturday night; at Sedalia, Mo., October 16, and at Chicago, October 19.

Upon these three speeches and the receptions in the States where there will be no speeches, Governor Smith is willing to rest his candidacy, insofar as the solid south and the border states are protectionist. The rest he is willing to leave to the state organizations.

His so-called "invasion" of the south is due entirely to the nervousness of some southern leaders. For his own part, he has been willing to accept the "solkld south" at its face value.

"Are you entirely satisfied with the reports you received from Chairman Raskob and other party leaders in New York?" he was asked.

"I am entirely satisfied," he replied, calmly.

Early this morning the Smith special crossed the Potomac at Washington and headed into Virginia, where but one stop was scheduled. This was at Richmond.

From Richmond the Smith special goes to Raleigh, Greensboro, Salisbury and Charlotte, N. C.; Chattanooga and Nashville, Tenn, and Louisville, Ky.

REOPEN POOLE DEATH PROBE

While all that was mortal of Bessie C. Poole, former Follies girl, was being consigned to earth at Onset today, New York officials reopened the investigation of her death, which took place, police say, after she had been beaten in a Broadway night club.

Tommy Guinan, brother of Texas Guinan, and part owner of the Chez Florence, where Miss Poole is alleged to have been beaten, was summoned to the office of the New York district attorney for questioning.

Others served with subpoenas were Joseph Whitehead, soft drink distributor, and Edward McCarthy, shipping concern executive, who were the girl's escorts; Dr. Harry Gilbert, and Daniel Coughlin, head of the Plaza Funeral Home.

MAE MURRAY "PERJURY" CASE BEFORE GRAND JURY

Los Angeles, Oct. 11 (AP)—Charges that Mae Murray, actress, attempted to influence a witness in her suit against Jack Donovan, architect, and perjured herself at the trial, will be investigated by a Grand Jury.

She won judgment of $25,000. She accused Donovan of selling her a home in Hollywood furnished with what he represented to be valuable antiques, which was largely cheap imitations.

RUNAWAY PLANE UP 40,200 FT., 73 BELOW

Dayton, O., Oct. 11 (INS)—Riding a runaway army plane at an altitude of 40,200 feet at a temperature of 73 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit, is the tale that is being related at Wright Field here today by U. S. Army Captains St. Clair Streett, pilot, and A. W. Stevens of the photographic section, following the flight of five hours that began here and ended in Rushvill, Ind.

Streett and Stevens took off from here yesterday at 11 a. m. in the XCP-5 in which Lieut. John Macready made the world's altitude record of 38,000 feet. They had intended to fly to Indianapolis and glide to Dayton.

Above Indianapolis, Capt. Stevens reported today, the controls of the ship froze and the ship continued to climb despite Streett's efforts. The ascent continued until the ship neared Bushville Ind., when the fuel supply became exhausted and the two fliers landed in a field near Rushville about 4 p. m.

The fliers maintained life during the trip by the use of liquid oxygen, a system that was being used for the first time, according to Wright Field officials.

Calibration by the U. S. Bureau of Standards of a barogram installed in the ship, it is believed, will establish a world's record for a ship with two passengers.

The flight was begun to test the ranee of a new aerial camera, in addition to the glide test.

ROOSEVELT TO ARRIVE IN HUB TODAY

Franklin D. Roosevelt, nominator of Gov. Alfred E. Smith at three Democratic national conventions and himself now the party's candidate for governor of New York, arrives in Boston this afternoon, and tonight starts off a big political week-end for the Hub.

Roosevelt speaks tonight at the Boston City Club and tomorrow evening before the Smith Flrst Voters' League, an organization of new voters, at Mechanics Building. The Elks Hotel will be the scene of a reception to the distinguished visitor tomorrow afternoon.

The Mechanics Hall rally is open to the general public and a capacity throng is expected by party leaders here. All party workers are invited to the Elks Hotel reception by the Democratic State committee.

Herbert Hoover is due to arrive in the Hub by the time the opposition shouting and tumult die away next Monday forenoon and, leaving his train at Newtonville, he will make an auto tour of the suburbs, touching Watertown, Belmont, Arlington, Medford, Malden, Everett, Somerville and Cambridge.

Prior to entering the Greater Hub he will make his first 'day State stop at Springfield, where he will speak through amplifiers to thousands from the western end of the State. This stop is limited to 12 minutes, and one at Worcester to 10 minutes. Arrival at Newtonville is carded for 11:15 and he is due at the Parkman bandstand on the Common at 12:30.

Repudiation of Gov. Smith as the party's standard bearer by Richard H. Long, former Democratic candidate for governor, and a message from Herbert Hoover, urging G. O. P. party workers to the "utmost activity," featured an enthusiastic Republican rally at Stockbridge where Frank G. Allen, candidate for governor, and B. Loring Young, running for U. S. Senator, were guests of honor.

A women's state advisory committee of the women's division of the Democratic State Committee was today appointed by Mrs. Colin W. MacDonald, first vice-chairman of the state committee and ex-officio head of the women's division. More than 70 well-known women leaders were named to membership on this committee.

NET WEIGHT ONE OUNCE

one package makes 4 different desserts or salads

Salad in Jelly
(6 servings)

Basic recipe for a simple fruit or vegetable salad

¼ envelope Knox Sparkling Gelatine
¼ cup cold water
1 cup boiling water
¼ cup mild vinegar (or lemon juice)
¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoonful salt

Soak gelatine in cold water 5 minutes and dissolve in boiling water; add sugar and stir until dissolved. Add vinegar and salt. Allow jelly to thicken somewhat, then stir prepared vegetables or fruit through and turn into wet molds. When canned fruit is to be molded, the fruit syrup may be substituted for part of the boiling water.

Orange-Pineapple Sponge
(6 servings)

¼ envelope Knox Sparkling Gelatine
¼ cup cold water
¼ cup hot water
¼ cup cooled pineapple or apricot juice
¼ cup orange juice
1 tablespoonful lemon juice
Few grains salt
Whites 2 eggs
½ cup sugar

Soak gelatine in cold water 5 minutes and dissolve in boiling water. Add sugar, salt and fruit juice. When it begins to stiffen, beat until frothy, and fold in whites of eggs beaten very stiff. Beat thoroughly, pile in glasses and decorate with pieces of pineapple and cherries. Serve with or without cream.

Coffee Marshmallow Cream
(6 servings)

¼ envelope Knox Sparkling Gelatine
¼ cup cold water
1¼ cups strong boiling coffee
2 tablespoonfuls sugar
¼ cup condensed or evaporated milk (or use plain milk)
1 tablespoonful lemon juice
¼ teaspoonful vanilla
Few grains of salt
1 cup of marshmallows

Soak gelatine in cold water 5 minutes and dissolve in hot coffee. Add sugar and stir until dissolved. Add milk, lemon juice, vanilla and salt, and when it begins to stiffen stir in marshmallows cut in fourths. Turn into wet mold and chill. Serve with or without cream. If plain milk or evaporated milk is used, allow one-fourth cup more sugar.

Chocolate Fudge

¼ envelope Knox Sparkling Gelatine
1¼ cups milk, 2 cups sugar
Few grains salt
1½ squares chocolate or 4 tablespoonfuls cocoa
1 cup nut meats, chopped
¼ tablespoonful butter
1 teaspoonful vanilla

Soak gelatine in one-fourth cup of cold milk five minutes. Bring sugar and remaining milk to boiling point, add to melted chocolate and salt and let boil until mixture will form a soft ball when tried in cold water. Remove from range, add soaked gelatine, butter and vanilla. Beat until it thickens, add nut meats and turn into buttered pan. When firm, cut in squares.

The Acidulated package contains two envelopes of plain sparkling granulated gelatine but also has an extra envelope of lemon flavoring, not mixed with the gelatine.

AL BATTLES IN SOUTHERN STATES AS G. O. P. FIGHTS IN WEST

HOOVER HAS 4 PIVOTAL STATES

By CHARLES N. WHEELER
Noted Political Analyst

Chicago, Oct. 11—The Democratic chiefs are rushing their reserves into the "Solid South" in an effort to frustrate a threatening movement there, while at the same time the G. O. P. seeks to stop a similar movement by the Democrats in the industrial East and throughout the granary belt.

The upheaval in the "Solid South" is now on and of such formidable aspect as to divert the attention of Raskob and his strategy board to this section in the very peak of the great struggle.

That is why Governor Smith and his aide are in Dixie territory, intent on winning over some, if not all, of the commonwealths that for sixty years were not even fighting-ground for the G. O. P.

The states the Governor visits on this trip, considered by his managers and advisers perhaps the most important of the entire campaign, are Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky and Missouri.

HOOVER FAVORED

As shown by the Hearst poll, Governor Smith will find that, with the one exception of Missouri, the preponderant sentiment of the voters is strongly pro-Hoover.

He likely will find that, were it not for the pure mechanics of politics, what is generally termed the "organization," every one of these states would go for the Republican candidate, with the exception, as noted, of the "show-me" state.

If he saves these states, it will be due to the so-called "machine" and not to the sentiment of the masses.

Tabulation of the Hearst poll figures of the five states today stands as follows:

	HOOVER			SMITH
	Men	Women	Tot	Men	Women	Tot
Virginia	3127	967	4094	2185	638	2823
N Carolina	3508	2158	5779	4376	1542	5918
Tenn	4918	1967	6918	3615	817	4432
Kentucky	3171	2746	5917	2149	2289	4438
Missouri	3767	4943	10710	4686	4347	9033

As these figures show, Hoover is leading in all the states but Missouri.

If the trend is maintained and the sentiment is properly registered at the ballot box, it is as good a guess as any today that the Republicans have at least a 60-50 chance, and in most of these doubtful Southern states a shade better than that.

CHOICE OF WOMEN

This forecast is based not only on the remarkable strength shown by Hoover among the men voters, but on the clearly indicated choice of him on the part of the women voters.

The one exception to the Smith strength being predicated on the efficacy of a 60-year old organization is Missouri.

Here, as in none of the other southern states embraced in the governor's itinerary, the Smith sentiment is spontaneous, quite regardless of party labels, and really genuine.

It is Smith the man and what he stands for, or at least what the Missouri voters think he stands for, that is overturning St. Louis and other cities of the State, while it is precisely what they think of Herbert Hoover the man and what they think he stands for, that is upsetting thousands of square miles of rural territory.

COOLIDGE WILL PHONE TO KING OF SPAIN

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP)—President Coolidge and King Alphonso are to talk with each other Saturday, opening radio telephone service between the United States and Spain.

Sour Stomach Sign of Carelessness

POLITE society frowns on those whose stomachs "grumble." For careful people heed this warning that the contents of the stomach is sour and fermenting. Those who don't, may some day develop gastritis—or even ulcers.

Nine times out of ten indigestion and allied stomach disorders are due to excess stomach acid, which impedes normal digestion and forms sour gases that cause intense pain. To restore good digestion you must eliminate this cause. A tablet of "Pape's Diapepsin" after eating or when pain is felt will instantly neutralize the acidity and banish all digestive trouble and pain.

So, do buy a 60-cent package of "Pape's Diapepsin" today. This not only means instant relief, but by soothing, healing and strengthening your weak and disordered stomach a little "Pape's Diapepsin" keeps your digestive system healthy and helps to prevent various disorders.

MORE OUTDOOR LIFE ADVISED BY SURGEONS

Outdoor sports is the best recipe that medical science can give to tired business Americans seeking the fountain of youth, according to eminent surgeons attending the meeting of the American College of Surgeons.

"You work too hard without spaced play as you go along, take yourselves too seriously and overlook the best means of staving off Father Time by taking regular outdoor exercises in the marvellous air of your New England climate with its pronounced seasonal changes," said Dr. Charles J. MacAuley, Dublin, Ireland, Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons of England.

"The Irish live longer because they play more and do not expect to amass a fortune upon which to retire early," he added.

Horseback riding was recommended by Dr. MacAuley as one of the finest aids to keeping young, both mentally and physically, "for youth is largely a matter of temperament," he said, "and this particular form of outdoor exercise produces a certain youthful exhilaration very valuable as the years go by."

The modern battle against cancer was discussed during the program today when 2600 delegates gathered at the Copley Plaza and at the Statler for standarization of hospitals conferences.

"We are still in the dark about finding a cure for this dread disease," Dr. Farquhar Macrae of Glasgow, Scotland, said, "but surgical science has made tremendous progress in this field."

KLAN ROW IN COUNCIL

Worcester, Oct. 11—A Ku Klux Klan row in the City Council today caused the withdrawal of all the Democratic members from further council and committee activities.

The Democratic councillors, meeting in caucus at City Hall, drew up resolutions naming the Klan at an early hour this morning and placed these in the hands of the city clerk today for formal presentation to the mayor and full council.

The row centers over the election of Earl G. Kingston as assistant superintendent of public buildings. Kingston was elected by the Republican majority in the council over the stormiest sort of opposition from the minority.

The Democratic members in their resolution charge that "said election was made by the Republican members with full knowledge of said Kingston being unfit and unqualified by reason of unmanly principles and practices incrained in his character by his affiliation with that un-American, scurrilous growth of ignorance and malice commonly known as the Ku Klux Klan."

New Tool Metal Cuts Hardest of Steels

Philadelphia, Oct. 11 (INS)—Perfection of a new tool material that will enable its users to cutscrew threads in a glass rod, bore smooth holes in concrete blocks, handle porcelain on a lathe and cut the hardest of steels, was announced today by Dr. Samuel L. Hoyt of the research laboratory of the General Electric Company.

The new metal, known as carboloy, is composed of tungsten carbide and cobalt, the former being extremely hard and the latter giving the material the necessary strength for utilization in cutting tools.

WHAT.. Play too hard?

Never, Mother, if you select proper food!

Only when wrong foods have been provided is the over-tired child a genuine cause for worry

IN the notorious lack of calories in many present-day menus dietitians foresee a serious danger.

Unless proper energy food is provided, children become literally starved. They grow cross . . . listless . . . mentally sluggish. They look pale. They lose weight.

Thus mothers are strongly urged to select foods for their dietetic worth. Serve delicious foods of course. But first make sure they "pay their way" in the vital energy-building elements.

It is for open-minded women anxious to follow such advice that we bake White Rose Bread.

It is a bread rich in calories. Packed with nourishment. And yet widely famous for its delicate flavor.

Cooking experts helped us

You see, we set our years ago to make White Rose an energy food.

So we consulted cooking experts and dietitians . . . tried recipe after recipe . . . and finally created a bread with 114 calories in every half-inch slice.

This bread is a muscle- and bone-builder, too. It is rich in protein . . . calcium . . . phosphates. Just the elements needed if "balanced" diet is your aim.

It puts solid flesh on growing little bodies . . . hardens teeth . . . builds strong, sturdy bones and active minds.

You see, we select our ingredients with infinite care. Highest quality flour. Rich, wholesome milk. Pure cane sugar.

That's why White Rose Bread is so widely endorsed by dietitians everywhere. That's why it is so delicate and delicious, too.

Children, you'll find, never seem to get enough. They'll eat all you give them, plain or spread with jam. And that goes for the grown-ups too!

A word of warning

At times you may be urged to accept some ordinary bread. Think, please, before you do. When health is at stake, a really careful mother will insist on getting the best every time.

So let your grocer distinctly understand that no bread but White Rose will satisfy. Do not trust your family's precious health to ordinary, untried brands.

FRANCIS DALEY OF BOSTON is mighty clever with his stilts. "It pays to be careful," he says, "when you have so far to fall." Francis gets White Rose Bread for six dietetic value three times every day. "It is a wonderful food," says Mrs. Daley, "for putting back energy active boys use up in play. I always order White Rose."

MYSTERY LADY STILL ROAMS AT LARGE

The "mysterious lady from 'The Silent House'" is still at large.

Again she roamed Boston—and again was undetected. Therefore, the $100 is still in her possession.

But there are four more persons who will be her guests next Monday night at the Majestic theater at a performance of "The Silent House," the Chinese mystery thriller, even though they were not quite sharp enough to detect her yesterday.

At the Shreve, Crump & Low, Co., shop in Tremont st., "a young man with nice blue eyes and wearing a gray suit" advised her at length on the matter of gold and platinum wedding rings.

In the Boston Public Library a pretty girl with a bright blue dress in the main reading room was asked for a good mystery story—preferably Chinese.

Ah well—we have a clue for you today. Some time between 2 and 4 p. m. today the mystery lady will be in the coat and dress department of R. H. White Co.

Watch for her. If you recognize her, walk up and say:

"You are the mysterious lady from 'The Silent House.'"

If you are right and you carry in your hand a copy of the Boston Evening American you will be $100 richer and you also will be a guest at "The Silent House."

Even those spoken to by the mystery lady but who do not recognize her will be guests and tickets will be delivered them.

BIG HUNTS CLUBS' MEETINGS ANTICIPATED—BETTY ALDEN

Races Scheduled by Norfolk and Myopia on Two Successive Saturdays

IF THE EASTERN HORSE CLUB MEMBERSHIP, almost in toto, is not out for next Saturday's race meeting at the Norfolk Hunt, it will be for no other reason than that dire extremity keeps individuals away. And if the same set does not appear in force down at Willowdale on Saturday week, for the Myopia's 16th annual fall race meeting, the same reason will hold good. For nothing but cataclysm or catastrophe can account for the non-appearance of your real race enthusiast at these two prime autumn favorites. The very creme of the hunt crowd will be on hand at the big show Henry G. Vaughan's Norfolk Hunt set provides, and at Bradley Palmer's far flung estate that is as perfect a piece of hunting country as can be found in several states.

SOME 300 GUESTS WILL GATHER ABOUT the festive luncheon board at Norfolk, a merry preliminary to the race meeting itself. And every establishment out that way will be open house and each filled with week-end guests. The Norfolk set is nothing if not hospitable and it does its autumn meeting in the jolliest possible way. Mr. Vaughan will have guests. So will the B. Nason Hamlins, the Walter Channings and the Freddy Dabneys. Mr. Dabney it is who busies himself as racing secretary, and who has entered in the contest a horse named Applejack, presumably possessing much speed and power.

B NASON HAMLIN IS BACK IN TOWN JUST in time for the race meeting, after a stay on Long Island for the American-Argentine polo. Mr Hamlin had a marvelous time over there, as well he would, being the popular sportsman and genial gentleman that he is. Mr. Hamlin reports that polo, so far as it concerns his veteran set, is over for the season. Not until another spring paints the turf bright green and mellow days make the strenuous sport possible will the Cameron Forbes field resound to clashing mallets and thudding hoofs. Cessation of polo, however, leaves the calendar clear for autumn's sports—so there's no interval for regrets or inactivity as the hunting horn sounds clear in the brisk air of morning.

THERE IS A JOURNEY ALMOST WORLD girdling before Benjamin J. Bowen after he departs from Boston and before he eventually arrives home in sun-drenched Tunisia. From Boston he travels westward to note anew the natural marvels of this vast land of ours. Then he crosses the Pacific and visits China, where he may do some painting, and again may not, just as fancy and the fine frenzy of inspiration decree. This interesting member of the painter fraternity has an interesting home in the desert, at Kairouan, near Tunis, with a wealth of Arabs, mosques, rug makers, bazaars and camel trains to supply quantities of atmosphere.

THE BOWEN PRIVATE VIEW AND TEA YESTERDAY at the Hotel Sheraton was the crowded, appreciation-expressing sort of festival most heartwarming to the artist. The tea accompaniment had Mesdames Channing Cox, Charles S. Jenney, Ernest Cowper and Thomas Claflin presiding over it, and four young girls from the May school, Miss Frances Seaver, Miss Constance Kimpton, Miss Leonora Kimball and Miss Carolyn Sampson, got a bit of future Junior League duties as ushers. Mrs. Frederick W. Spring was hostess and Mr. Bowen the most genial of lions.

EVERYONE WAS DELIGHTED WITH THE Bowen canvases. Brittany's ancient charms, as Mr. Bowen's brush records them, are exactly the sort of paintings it is so easy to live with. And Northern Africa's sun-lit sands and slanting lights on mosque and bazaar could whip the imagination of the most inveterate stay-at-home into fancied flights to unknown shores.

MISS FANNY MASON BELONGS TO THE migratory Boston set that follows the seasons up and down the world and may be met with, in its individual members, along every tourist route the world over. A summertime in Europe, a Boston interval at her Commonwealth ave. abode and then the hill country of New Hampshire is her mode of progress, just as the autumnal paint brush drips bright gold and crimson over every dale and slope. Adjacent to the broad and usually calm Connecticut, winding smoothly to the sea and dividing the Granite from the Green Mountain State, Miss Mason has a pleasant country place where she will tarry for a while.

THE MINTON MACHADO WARRENS DID THE briefest of flittings to Europe and now have made a turn around and come sailing home again. They embarked at Southampton and are due in New York immediately and Boston eventually. A sort of supplementary wedding journey, this crossing, to celebrate the first lune de miel a twelvemonth ago. Mrs. Warren was Miss Sarah Ripley Robbins and will be doing some pleasant things for Miss Anne M. Robbins, sister to Mrs. Warren, new probationary Junior Leaguer and younger daughter in the family circle of Dr. and Mrs. William Beaford Robbins.

SEVENTY BUDS IN THE JUNIOR LEAGUE garden! Seventy star-eyed young girls who have made the social grade and been received into the inner circle of feminines! From now on these three-score and ten will be the busiest of people, for added to the debutante strenuosities of fetes and parties, full acceptance into Junior League membership depends on the bud's rallying to calls for service.

Miss Abby Beveridge, daughter of former Senator and Mrs. Beveridge; Miss Mary Bigelow, Miss

Susan Clymer, who will be a bride in the new year; Miss Margaret Cummings, daughter of the Charles K. Cummings; Miss Rosamond Gardiner, initiated early into Junior League duties by her sister, Miss Elizabeth Gardiner; Miss Aline Kilham, daughter of the artistically inclined Walter Kilhams, are on the list.

PRETTY, DARK-EYED MISS PHYLLIS ELLSworth, Miss Mary Gray, granddaughter of that grande dame of Boston's elect, Mrs. John Chipman Gray; Miss Caroline Read, lively and popular in Cambridge and daughter of the Harold Reads; Miss Juliet Richardson, for whom many parties are arranged; Miss Gladys Winifred Thorndike, a younger set beauty; Miss Mary Vance, ward of Mrs. J. Davenport Brown, who has been finely "polished" abroad, are in the favored set.

Quite naturally Miss Marguerite Swann, Miss Josephine L. Sturgis, Miss Lydia Rotch, Miss Ruth Lyman, Miss Cora Lyman, Miss Lalaita Leland and Miss Elizabeth Morison come into the coterie that will labor so joyously for full membership.

MISS JANE GARFIELD, MISS CONSTANCE Creighton, Miss Mary Parkinson, Miss Elizabeth Thacher, Miss Esther Bemis, Miss Mary Bigelow, Miss Maria Brown, Miss Elizabeth Emery, who had a merry party given for her only a few days ago; Miss Diana Lee-Warner, Miss Alice Dodge, Miss Edith and Miss Mary Eustis, Miss Rosamond Musgrave, Miss Martha Wigglesworth, Miss Anne Clifford, Miss Adelaide M. Brown, Miss Margaret Ives have their names inscribed on the all-important list. One of its bright particular stars is Miss Mary Flagg, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Elisha Flagg, and another is Miss Sally Sprague, for whom the Philaes W. Spragues will do many pleasant things this winter.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

TWO NEW LOVES FOR LITA

Unknown to her friends, Lita Grey Chaplin, divorced wife of the comedian, for weeks rehearsed a part in vaudeville. She made her debut in a Los Angeles theater and made a hit. Roy D'Arcy, screen heavy, whose name has been linked with Lita's for some time, is shown congratulating her back stage.

Tiger Love—The Amazing Story of a Dancer

CHAPTER 4

An old woman, withered and dour of expression, had entered the house of Mahji at the summons of her husband.

"My wife, great Sahib," the man said to the white man, with a reverential salaam. "The mother of this maiden . . . and such a loving mother."

The white hunter shot a quizzical glance at the couple and answered glimly: "Very good. Let her minister to her daughter. And I want a word with you outside."

As the old woman entered the room where the young girl lay, her husband followed the white man to the outside of the house.

"Your will, Sahib?"

"I want to know where that young woman came from," was the blunt demand in Hindustani. "She is not a dark-skinned as you or your wife, and her hair is lighter than that of Hindu maidens. Her face her hands, feet all look different from those of native girls. Where did you get her?"

The old man stared at his inquisitor without the flicker of an eyelash.

"She is indeed my daughter, even as I have said, O Sahib!" he said without hesitation. "Why should I lie? Are there not millions of daughters in this great land of ours? Many weary years have we spent teaching her the dance which won such praise tonight. Are we not entitled to the fruits of our labor, to the gain which she may bring us in these our days of old age?"

The white man felt checkmated. What was it his business, after all? He had chanced upon the scene by the merest accident. In his travels through India he had seen many of its native daughter—of the same Aryan stock as himself—as fair as many of the young women of his own acquaintance back in America. If the girl were happy it was her own affair, her own life to live. And, if ever he had seen happiness evident it had been in that superb exhibition of native dancing.

The old musician shot a sharp glance at him under the bushy gray eyebrows.

"I have not offended you, Sahib, have I?" he inquired softly. "In my heart is only a great gratitude for your saving my beloved daughter from the man-eater. I would go far to serve you."

The white man shook his head in the spirit of surrender.

"Does she speak English? Where did you learn to say, 'Yes, sir,'" he asked finally.

"Once, many years ago, she studied at a mission school, when she was sickly," replied the musician. "Many young girls learn the language. She knows but little of it, Sahib? You may speak with her again. Why should I deceive you? I seek only my chance to repay you for saving the jewel of a father's heart."

The white man arose.

"I will talk with her once more. I am sure you are a good man, and I hope you treat her well and see that she is happy."

As he walked toward the room of the holy man's house he negligently dropped a rupee by his feet. Quick as a flash the musician had snatched it up.

"And a poor man, too, I see," laughed the white man. "Well, I wish you luck and may your gods always be on hand—when the next tiger comes."

His parcel, tossed another coin to the wanderer who blessed him volubly, and then turned toward the young girl.

She smiled at him, as the old woman stepped respectfully aside, with a bow to the white man. He spoke a word in Hindustani.

"Sahib, humbly I offer my gratitude for saving me from the beast," and her voice was low and musical.

MILLION RAISED BY EPISCOPALS

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP)—An offering believed to have surpassed $1,000,000 was made for mission work early today when the Woman's Auxiliary of the Protestant Episcopal Church had its triennial thank offering in connection with the general convention.

Services took place in the choir of the partly-completed cathedral, the first prayer book service to be held there, and was announced as the largest communion service ever celebrated in this country by the Episcopal church.

The Most Rev. John Gardner Murray, bishop of Maryland and presiding bishop of the church, was communion celebrant.

GOODWIN TO BACK ALLEN

GOODWIN SUPPORTS TICKET

More than three weeks after his defeat in the State primaries for the Republican nomination for governor, Frank A. Goodwin, former registrar of motor vehicles, today issued a statement in which he says he will vote for Frank G. Allen, his successful opponent, and the entire Republican ticket.

There have been rumors in State House circles that Goodwin may succeed William F. Williams, State Commissioner of Public Works, when he quits that office in December because of the age limit.

"I shall vote for Mr. Allen and the straight Republican ticket, national and state," said Mr. Goodwin in his statement today. Then he added, "But I will continue the fight for a state fund for automobile insurance, reduction of telephone and light and power rates, and a settlement of the Boston Elevated problem in the interest of the car riders."

VAN LOON IS SUED FOR DIVORCE

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—Frances Goodrich, actress, has started divorce proceedings against Henrik Willem Van Loon, the writer, naming his second wife, Helen Criswell, with whom she charges he is living in Holland. His first wife was Elizabeth Bowditch of Boston.

Miss Goodrich obtained a Supreme Court order permitting service of papers in the action by publication and by mailing a copy to Van Loon at Walcheren, Vsere, Holland. She asks temporary alimony and costs of $500.

Van Loon and Miss Goodrich were married last October at Elizabeth, N. J., and maintained separate establishments here for some time thereafter. They explained this was due to economic reasons only and not a form of companionate marriage.

Reports that the author and his second wife were reunited and were living in the Dutch fishing village were received by Miss Goodrich some time ago. She cabled her husband and the court action was taken as indicating he had confirmed the rumors.

Van Loon was born in Holland in 1882 and came to this country at an early age. Miss Criswell formerly conducted a tearoom in Greenwich Village, where she was known as "Jimmie." Miss Goodrich was divorced in 1923 from Robert Ames, the actor.

VICTORY PLANT TO BE PLANE FACTORY

Plans for making the old Victory plant at Quincy one of the largest centers for manufacturing airplanes and flying boats in this country, were announced by officials of the Victory Terminal Co. today.

Within 10 days the De Havilland Aeroplane Manufacturing Co. of London, England, is expected to sign a lease for at least 35,000 square feet to manufacture passenger, freight and bombing airplanes.

Also a representative of a New York airplane manufacturing company, who has been at Quincy for some time, is ready to lease 30,000 square feet to build airplanes and a new type of floating boat, it was announced.

The projects are being endorsed by the Boston Chamber of Commerce, which has pointed out their completion will mean the employment of thousands of local residents and the expenditure of large sums of money in this section.

The English concern is expected to spend several millions of dollars in development work.

Arman De Mutch, German ace, representing the New York outfit, said his company plans to manufacture flying boats equipped with airplane propellers, and two airships capable of carrying 35 passengers and 3500 pounds of freight or mail each.

The U. S. army has pledged to dredge the channel to a depth of 25 feet at low water and a width of 300 feet.

NATIVES HUNT OIL WITH LAMP; 47 ARE KILLED

Rangoon, Burma, Oct. 11 (AP)—Forty-seven natives, including 18 women, were burned to death at Twingon, 120 miles from Rangoon, Monday night in a flaming pool of oil. Twenty were seriously injured.

Messengers here stated a leak developed in a petroleum pipe line and villagers hurried to the scene carrying lighted oil. While working with a lamp, the natives suddenly found themselves in the midst of a flaming furnace.

MASTER TO HEAR LOWELL GREEK CHURCH DISPUTE

The Lowell Greek Church dispute will go to a master for a hearing as a result of agreement by counsel for opposing factions, the Malloucha group and the "Bishop's faction," in Middlesex Superior Court today before Judge Hammond. The latter group also asked an injunction restraining the others from administering the affairs of the church pending settlement. This was taken under advisement.

BUY RUM UNDER CAPITOL DOME, SAYS BLEASE

Augusta, Ga., Oct. 11 (AP)—Charges that the prohibition law was not being enforced and that he could buy liquor under the dome of the United States Capitol at Washington were made here by Senator Cole L. Blease of South Carolina in a Democratic campaign address.

"If every man in the United States," he added, "who takes a drink votes for Governor Smith for President, he will get the biggest majority of any nominee in the history of America."

"I voted against Al Smith at the Houston convention, but when he became a candidate of the Democratic party he became my candidate."

Declaring government trucks guarded soldiers go to Baltimore from Washington and bring back liquor landed there and deliver it in homes of the capital, Blease said, "no man or woman in Augusta is fool enough to think the prohibition law is being enforced.

"I can take you to the United States Senate, under the dome of the capitol where Congress makes your laws, and buy liquor there. You could take the prohibition law and the Volstead act off the Federal statute books and it wouldn't affect those states that have dry laws."

The senator attacked the war record of Hoover, declaring "he had a line gained for his church, relieving Quakers from fighting in the war. These things are a matter of record in Washington, accessible to any who write for them."

THREE PICKETS SEIZED IN LYNN SHOE STRIKE

Three pickets at a Lynn shoe factory were arrested by Lynn police today charged with threatening alleged strike-breakers with bodily harm. Those in custody are Mike Adams and Charles Malagnan, both of High street, and Favian, Townes ct.

The complainant against the trio is William Zalnevi, who informed the police they had threatened him with murder, and who was so frightened that he asked for an officer to escort him from the factory to his home.

Car Passengers Flee Fire

Fire in the resistance box of a street car at Seaver st. and Humboldt ave., Roxbury, today, forced a number of passengers to flee and caused $200 damage to the trolley. Firemen were called out on a still alarm and traffic was tied up for a short time.

Urges Safety Isles in Streets for Pedestrians

Construction of safety islands in Boston streets for the protection of pedestrians, similar to devices used successfully in Paris and London, was urged today by Fitz Henry Smith, Jr., in a letter to the Boston Chamber of Commerce. Smith, who is a director of the Chamber and formerly chairman of its committee on municipal and metropolitan affairs, said that pedestrians have been too often lost sight of in the consideration of street traffic problems.

Bike Rider, 78, Injured

Benjamin Foss, 78, of Dustin rd., Lynn, an everyday bicycle rider in spite of his advanced years, was bruised about the body and legs today when a truck backed into his bicycle on Newhall st., Lynn, throwing him over the handle-bars.

LEFTY FLYNN'S MOTHER SUICIDE ON COAST

Greenwich, Ct., Oct. 11 (INS)—Mrs. Anna Moore Flynn, wife of Joseph A. Flynn, an official of the Thompson-Starrett Company of New York and mother of Maurice S. "Lefty" Flynn, former football star and motion picture actor, died at Greenwich Hospital from the effects of self-inflicted wounds on her throat and wrist.

Mrs. Flynn had been suffering from mental trouble. She was at her home in Riverside when it is she was found in serious condition by servants and taken to the hospital.

Besides her husband and son, Mrs. Flynn is survived by a sister, Mrs. Grover E. Warren, wife of a wealthy sugar refiner, who lives here on Old Church rd. The son lives in Hollywood, Cal.

Funeral services are to be held Saturday morning in Syracuse, N. Y., with burial there in St. Agnes Cemetery.

MOTHER MAKES HER SON RETURN STOLEN BONDS

Webster, Oct. 11—A mother, determined that he reap should "face the music," today telephoned Edward Phoenix of Whitcomb st. and had $15,000 in bonds, that she said her son would meet him in Hartford Ct., to return the stolen securities.

The youth, whose name is being withheld, was formerly friendly with Phoenix' daughter and thus knew the location of the safe in which the bonds were kept, according to Webster police.

Phoenix and his daughter, accompanied by Police Chief Hetherman will meet the mother and son at Hartford. The telephone call was from a Connecticut town and the mother, who did not attempt to conceal her identity, told of a confession by her son, police say.

RED CROSS HURRICANE FUND IS OVER THE TOP

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP)—The American Red Cross today reported to President Coolidge that the $5,000,000 minimum hurricane relief fund had been oversubscribed by almost $20,000. The Red Cross expects the fund will be further oversubscribed as some large quota sections have not reached the minimum. The total subscribed is $25,- 025,994.82.

BELIEVE PRINCE DIED VICTIM OF POISON LIQUOR

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—The death of Alexander V. Turin, described as a prince of the former Republic of Georgia, was under investigation by city medical authorities today on the possibility that it might have been caused by drinking poison liquor.

Turin died in the apartment of Mrs. Sparska Rodkoff, with whom he had luncheon. She told police he had a cocktail and several glasses of whiskey.

The death since Saturday of 33 persons from wood alcohol poisoning caused Dr. Charles Norris, city medical examiner, to order the body taken to the morgue for an autopsy.

Mrs. Rodkoff, who said she was a Bulgarian translator, told police she met Prince Alexander at the Hotel Plaza a few days ago through mutual friends. Yesterday he called to see her and they had luncheon together at a restaurant in 53d st., where he had several drinks.

After luncheon they returned to her apartment on Riverside drive and had hardly sat down when he complained of feeling ill and fell to the floor Terrified, she called police. He was dead before medical attention could be given.

PEACE MOVE IN EXPRESS 'WAR'

New York, Oct. 11 (INS)—An effort to end the strike which has brought express traffic in New York to a standstill will be made today by George M. Harrison of Cincinnati, president of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, a representative of the board of mediation in Washington and a mediator of the State Labor Department.

The three will confer on means to settle the strike, which involves 7000 men, according to union officials, although the American Railway Express claims that only 3800 workers are out.

A thousand carloads already are piled up at terminals here, and an embargo has been placed on all shipments into the metropolitan area to prevent congestion. It was stated that the curtailment in supply of perishable foodstuffs would not affect the market to any noticeable degree.

Claims by the strikers that the company would lose $1,500,000 a day through the tieup were denied by company officials.

4 COLLEGE HEADS ON ANNIVERSARY BOARD

Presidents of four colleges in Greater Boston today accepted membership in the general arrangements committee for the 50th anniversary celebration next week of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. They are Ellen F. Pendleton, Wellesley; Ada Comstock, Radcliffe; A. Lawrence Lowell, Harvard, and John A. Cousens, Tufts.

PRISON WARDEN HENDRY VERY ILL AT HOME

Warden William Hendry, for nearly six years warden of state prison in Charlestown, is critically ill, it became known today.

The veteran of 35 years in prison work in service of state and county, is under care of two physicians.

They have advised the warden's removal to a hospital, but declares he has refused to go to any institution.

Warden Hendry has been confined to bed for two weeks in his home adjoining the prison in which he has been an officer for 13 years and where, since he became warden, there have occurred historic electrocutions.

Report of the warden's illness came today as a shock to his many friends, including scores of newspapermen.

CAN'T FIND FAWCETT IN JUNGLE; BELIEVE HE'S DEAD

New York, Oct. 11 (INS)—Confident he has cleared the mystery of what befell the Fawcett expedition, Cmdr. George M. Dyott, English explorer, returned to New York today after months in the Brazilian jungles.

Dyott reiterated his belief that Col. P. H. Fawcett and his party were killed by Indians in July, 1925. The Dyott expedition was for the purpose of finding the Fawcett party, if still alive. Dyott was accompanied by his bride, the former Persis Stevens Wright. The party included William Demaio, of New Bedford, Mass.

CHARGE FIRE CHIEF DROVE FAST AS AUTO HIT BOY

Mayor Bauer of Lynn today ordered Fire Chief Edward Chase, at that city to investigate the allegation that District Chief Ernest Williams was driving at an excessive rate of speed when his machine struck Russell Van Horn, 4 years old, on Vine street, last night.

The boy's mother called at City Hall and informed the Mayor that Williams, driving a fire department automobile, failed to slow down on Vine street, although it was crowded at the time with children at play.

BOY'S LEG FRACTURED BY MOTOR TRUCK

Harry DuLong, seven, of Eastern ave., Malden, suffered a fracture of one of his legs and the other was seriously injured when he fell beneath the rear wheel of a truck just starting to leave Eastern ave. and Cross st., Malden. Armand L. Gerette of Hamlet pl., Malden, was driving the truck, police say.

Phone Line for Under Sea

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—A deep-sea telephone cable that can be utilized for transatlantic traffic has been perfected in the Bell laboratories. It is believed it will overcome the inherent deficiencies of radio.

'Dine and Dance' Features Many for Holiday Eve

The Egyptian Room of the Hotel Brunswick now boasts a new dance floor. President L. C. Prior of the Brunswick decided that the time had arrived for something entirely new, something to emphasize the return to the Egyptian Room of Leo Reisman, who has been playing a summer dance engagement in the Waldorf-Astoria, New York. Time was valuable and it was decided to make the change, literally, overnight. The result was that a big crew of expert floormen were put on the job and the work was accomplished in less than 13 hours. So well did the dancers enjoy the new floor that the hotel management was the recipient of many words of praise.

A unique bill of entertainment is being offered at the Yen Ho Restaurant, 245 Tremont st., in the heart of the theatrical district. Scott and Doug'as head the bill with a spectacular dancing act. Peter Waterman, former feature dancer with Paul Whiteman, and Marie Duke and Lillian Elaine do their bits to make merry. Red Kane, well known Boston boy, is master of ceremonies. Snappy dance music is furnished by Frankie Maynard's orchestra.

A brand new show is being offered by Mickie Alpert at the Cocoanut Grove, In fact, Mickie, who also serves with a great measure of success as the master of ceremonies and one of the entertainers, has procured the services of several international favorites, headed by Helen Wheris who appears at the Grove fresh from a succession of European triumphs. The first show at the Grove is staged at 9:15. Dinner is served between 6 and 9 and there is no cover charge. Jacques Renard and his famous recording orchestra continue to furnish the music.

A new review is being presented at Yoeng's Kenmore Restaurant, 532 Commonwealth ave., Kenmore Station. Additional talent will make up a feature bill tonight and for the three shows of the holiday. Henry Davis and his radio novelty orchestra are giving an excellent program of dance music. The cabaret shows are presented at 12:30 p. m., 7 p. m. and 11 p. m. There will be dancing until 2 a. m.

Jimmie Gallagher and his Big and Better orchestra are drawing big crowds at Palais D'or, 281 Huntington ave. Stephen Hung, manager announces an excellent vaudeville bill this week which includes Helen Sibley, Powers and Joyce, Frank and Dorothy LaSalle, Dorothy Owens and Edna Reay.

The first of the fall season dances at the Quincy Mass Armory takes place tonight with Frank Sheridan and his 12 musicians, who will play from 12 midnight to 5 a. m. Dances will be held weekly at the Armory and a great many of the large New York and New England orchestras are to be features at these popular dances.

Karle Rohde and his popular recording orchestra will play at the State Ballroom, State Theater Building tonight from 8 p. m. to 1 a. m.

Morey Pearl and his band will be at the Tent tonight for the holiday eve celebration and dance from 3 p. m. to 2 a. m. Doors open at 2:30 p. m. and a record crowd is expected.

Joe Rubin's Pine View Inn, located on the Providence State road, 10 miles from Boston, will celebrate the holiday tonight with an all-night dance. Joe has booked a number of special parties for the evening and announces a real good dance program, plenty of eats and a merry time.

Russell and Darling, sensational dancers, are creating a big hit at the Symphony Restaurant, 253 Huntington ave. This dancing act is the only one of its kind ever presented in Boston. Russell guarantees to make a dancer within 15 minutes under his guidance and instruction. At each performance some young lady from the audience volunteers for the dance. Russell highly compliments the girls of Boston for their dancing ability. Lou Lerner, as master of ceremonies, Beth Calvan and Violet Gridley, and the Mara Dancing Dolls, complete an all-star bill.

Horween Makes 3 Changes in Harvard Lineup

CRIMSON MUST STEP SATURDAY

North Carolina Has Capable Team; Will Offer Good Test

By TED LYNCH

With North Carolina promising stiffer competition than Springfield, Harvard coaches are working today in a last-minute effort to gather a new eleven to meet the strong Tarheel aggregation from the South.

revamped and rejuvenated his Harvard varsity, despite its impressive showing against Springfield last Saturday.

There will be three changes in the Harvard lineup. Three shifts in an eleven that looked great in its debut on the Stadium grass. This certainly shows that Horween still is developing material across the Charles, material which will play an important part in the tough stretch against Army, Dartmouth, Lehigh, Holy Cross and Yale.

Two of the three changes come in the Crimson flank. Experts attending the first game declared Harvard to be weak in the center of the line. A greater expert, Line Coach Duke Dunne, also saw the weakness of his center trio in opening holes and hence comes the replacement of Jack Parkinson at left guard.

Bill Ticknor, another Milton Academy boy, has been chosen to fill in at the post which Parkinson has held for two seasons. Bill Ticknor is the elder brother of Ben Ticknor, present varsity center. He is a bulky sort of individual and his charge has been the main feature of the past week.

Coach Dunne has picked Ticknor to play guard on the offense, while on the defense he will move over to tackle. This causes a vice versa system of play for elongated Tim Clarke, whose play has been rather spotty on the defense this season.

In justice to Jack Parkinson, the dethroned guard, let us say here that his removal to Team B is only caused by his meagre poundage, the Groton boy scaling little over 155 pounds. There is not a more energetic player on the squad and he has overcome this lack of weight by his extraordinary fighting ability.

He is always in the game and although he faded slightly in the second half, his worth to last year's varsity was inestimable.

O'CONNELL STARTS AT END

The other shift in the line has Dick O'Connell, at last coming into his own, displacing the injured Jack Douglas at right end. O'Connell played a wide of a game against Springfield and it would not be surprising to see the Cambridge boy hold this position permanently, with due respect to the ability of Douglas.

In the backfield Tommy Mason, another Milton Academy boy, has been elected over such backs as Gilligan, Batchelder and Graves to fill the fullback post heretofore claimed by Wally Harper. Harper is at present on the shelf with his pedestal and will probably watch the coming game from the sidelines.

The first two shifts doubtless should help the Harvard varsity. The playing of Mason in the carrying squad is a move, whose value will not be ascertained until Saturday.

B. C. and Duke Elevens to See Harvard Game

Boston College and Duke University squads will be guests of the Harvard-North Carolina football game on Saturday afternoon as the guests of the Harvard A. A. Duke accepted the invitation this morning in a letter to Athletic Director William J. Bingham. As for Boston College, it will be a return favor on the part of Harvard, for the Crimson football team attended the first game of the season on Boston College's schedule with Catholic University.

Nichols to Present Flag to Cadets

The West Point Cadet Corps at all its future dress parades and drills will carry with it two mementos of its visit to Boston this year. The city of Boston through Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols will award the corps a special flag. The Commonwealth of Massachusetts will present the Cadets with two new flagstaffs. These new flagstaffs will be carried by the cadets in all their future parades. Both these gifts were today accepted by Maj. P. B. Fleming, graduate manager of athletics at West Point.

GREAT EAGLE TRIO WHO BATTLE AGAINST DUKE TOMORROW

Boston College will have a tough time to chew up the tobacco king's collegians of Duke at Fenway Park tomorrow afternoon. Duke defeated B. C. last year in the local college's opening game. So the team from the Heights is anxious to even matters. And, incidentally keep its winning record intact. The tussle will be one of the best of the year in these parts.

TUFTS TO HAVE LIGHT WORK TODAY

The workout at Tufts this afternoon will be a light one as it is the last one before the Bates game Saturday. The session will consist of a brisk signal drill and a dummy scrimmage. The squad will witness the B. C.-Duke game tomorrow and leave for Lewiston Saturday morning.

Several new plays have been tried and they go well. The work of the second string line, especially Giles, gave the varsity something to think about.

George LeCain, brother of Jimmy, former Tufts quarterback, was the star of the workout. He was put in as a substitute for Fish Ellis, and proceeded to run the scrubs ragged.

He broke away for several long runs, hit the line for some gains, passed well on two occasions, and selected his plays well. His showing indicates that Tufts will have a good quarterback to take Fish's place next year.

Muskavitz and Haber also looked well in the session, this former hitting the line for several long gains. Toeir showing is especially heartening to the coaches as there has been a lack of good second string backs for replacement purposes.

The indications today were that Fred Kennedy would be unable to start the Bates game and would not be used unless it is absolutely necessary. Danny Cilano, the other man on the injured list, was informed that his bruised shoulder would keep him out of a uniform for at least a week.

Austin Lake, former Lafayette star, gave Fish Ellis some pointers on how to drop them over the bars during the session and Fish promises to improve his work in this department against Bates.

Colby Eleven Works Against Frosh Team

Waterville, Me., Oct. 11—A 45-minute scrimmage with the freshmen featured the Colby varsity practice.

Coach Roundy's charges scored three times on the yearlings and this latter scored once.

Arber, Scott and Roberts contributed the varsity scores and Waite tallied for the freshmen.

Arber is showing up well at fullback and has added weight to the backfield. Seekins reported for practice, the first time since the Tufts game.

It was definitely decided that Klunick's injuries received last Saturday will keep him out of the Norwich game this weekend.

BABE IS NEARLY MOBBED BY CROWD

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—Babe Ruth and the world's champion Yankees are home again, bringing with them their unequalled string of records made in their second successive World a Series triumph, and received the adulation of thousands of baseball fans, young and old.

After a journey from St. Louis that was a long series of hero worshiping trying to catch a glimpse of the champions and the champion of champions, the Babe, the athletes arrived in New York at 9 o'clock last night to be met with a demonstration that outshone all the rest.

A crowd of about 5000 cheering fans was on hand when the special train reached the Grand Central terminal, while the players had to fight their way through the throng to the Astor. Hilltmore, where Governor Smith was waiting to add his greeting.

Six sturdy policemen were required to disentangle Ruth from the crowd while such unimportant persons as Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the team, and Miller Huggins, who guided the Yankees to victory, were swept aside in the rush.

Governor Smith, dressing to start on a campaign tour, held his collar and tie in his left hand while he grasped Ruth's hand with his right.

"Congratulations on the title," he said. "If I could count on as many votes as you have kids yelling for you, I'd be sure I'm going to be elected," the governor continued.

As he put on his collar and tie, the governor asked Ruth if he was all through for the season.

"All except a little barnstorming," Ruth replied.

"That's what I'm going to do, too," Smith said, "except that instead of hitting the ball I've got to hit the candidate."

After greeting the rest of the team and posing for photographers, the governor left to catch his train and the players slipped from the hotel in small groups, trying to avoid the

Eagles Meet Tough Foe in Duke Eleven

By JOHN B. GILLOOLY

Fenway Park will be the magnet for football fans from all parts of New England tomorrow afternoon when Boston College, boosted to the grid pinnacle by its boy boss, Joe McKenney, meets Duke University from Durham, North Carolina.

As has been said a victory over Holy Cross is always welcome, but a victory over the Navy is something else altogether. It has brought B. C. national prominence and the fans in this section of the land are dying to get a glimpse of that golden gang that emerged from the south ceremoniously dropping a bombe into the arms of the Annapolis midshipmen, a highly-touted organization.

The Navy upset will swell the sides of Fenway Park tomorrow according to Graduate Manager Frank Reynolds of Boston College. On Monday and Tuesday $1000 worth of tickets were sold, a new record for early week sales.

Fenway Park, with its new portable stands in left field, can now accomodate 36,000. It is expected that 30,000 of these seats will be occupied. Only the pavilions behind the goal posts will be vacant.

Joe McKenney's team can assure a successful future at Fenway Park tomorrow. If it puts over a good win, shows the fans some real football and gives satisfaction to the patrons it will be filling the field for the rest of the season.

DUKE TEAM IS CAPABLE

But Boston College has its hands full. Duke University comes up from the tobacco fields of North Carolina with a reputation that has Joe McKenney, the B. C. team and the Boston College rooters bothered.

It will be remembered that Duke walloped Boston College in the first game last fall by a 2-0 score. And the Blue Devils, an appropriate moniker, have the same team back again plus some promising new candidates.

The team has improved in every department after a year of playing together and should be even better than the wide-awake outfit that clipped the Eagles so promptly in the 1927 campaign.

But the B. C. team that Duke walloped last fall was just getting the first taste of the Lou Daley system. It was a hot afternoon and the players from the Hub could not match the condition of the visitors, who were playing in their own weather. And, due to the freshman rule which went into effect last fall B. C. lacked reserves. Duke had only one real varsity team to put on the field and they had to play through.

battle will ensue at Fenway, tomorrow, with Boston College winning out in the end. The Eagles are a 5 to 3 favorite.

McKenney will mike Al Merrill tomorrow. The Revere Tarzan is out with a sprained ankle. You can't knock him out, but you can sprain his ankle. Al will watch the game from the B. C. bench. McKenney will use either Sheehan, Gorman or Donahue at the berth.

The other guard job is likely to be held down by Zeus Wilczewski. Zeus had a chipped shoulder on his return from Annapolis, but may be bandaged up sufficiently to take his place in the middle of the Eagle line.

Bernie Kilroy will again start at center with Andrew Anderson, varsity center, in the first game, on the bench. Anderson, Conveyor and Preno will probably be used at center during the game.

Castree Is Shown Going Over for Touchdown in the Third Period

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 11—The Navy had an alibi today for its defeat at the hands of Boston College last Saturday.

Medford-Somerville Tilt Features Holiday Bill

BIG CROWD WILL SEE BATTLE

Dickerman Clan Out to Get on Winning Path Again; Is Slight Favorite

By DICK McSWEENEY

The most exciting and interesting school game scheduled for the holiday is the clash between Medford and Somerville, bitter rivals.

Red and Blue got off to a good start this season by defeating Chelsea and Salem, but Waltham proved a little too strong for Somerville to down.

The Waltham disaster has made Coach Dickerman's charges more anxious than ever to win the Medford game as they wish to demonstrate that their wins over Chelsea and Salem were no flukes.

Malden, undismayed by their defeat at the hands of Haverhill, will face Melrose. O'Connor and Fishman will give the Melrose lads plenty of trouble in this struggle.

NEWTON-EVERETT CLASH

Newton will prove to be one of the hardest opponents Everett has been called on to meet this season. It is a safe bet that there will be no empty seats at the Everett athletic field when these two Suburban league rivals engage in gridiron combat.

Scheinfain, Newton's captain and star end, will worry the Glidea eleven.

Cambridge Latin plays Rindge Tech at Russell field for the mythical championship of Cambridge. Latin has displayed some good form all this year, though it has yet to register a victory.

The Everett disaster has shaken the Rindge team quite a bit, but the Brown and White is sure to put up a good battle when they engage with Leander McDonald's club.

Lynn Classical invades Haverhill for a gridiron scrap, and will have a busy time trying to stop Barney Get Haverhill back.

The visitors will have to watch Lad's punting also. Haverhill's power and teamwork is favored over that of the Lynn outfit.

Lawrence and Andover play at Andover, and when private school meets public school, watch the fur fly. Lawrence is not as strong as it was last season, but it has Linn in the backfield, and Lingen a fine tackle.

BOSTON SCHOOL TWIN BILL

The Boston high schools will put on a double-header at the Braves' stamping grounds, Mechanics Arts versus Dorchester, and Trade versus English. Both games are scheduled for Monday morning.

Peabody will take a flight team to Beverly. Winchester entertains Arlington in a Mystic Valley League contest. Norwood is host to Framingham. Providence Commercials Gloucester, Milton goes to Quincy, Lexington plays Wakefield travels to Needham, Stoneham plays Reading in a morning contest, Bolton journeys to Hingham and Hingham contends with Abington at the latter's field.

There are a few more on the list. Weymouth at Hudson Concord at Braintree, B. U. Freshmen at Newburyport, New Hampshire, Dartmouth Freshmen, Tabor Academy at Quincy Jack, and Rose Hum at Fitchburg at Mitchell Military school.

BATTLES SCOZZA

ARTHUR FLYNN

Will get his chance for revenge tomorrow at Braves Field when he meets the tough Providence boxer, Lew Scozza, in the main bout of the Argonne A. C. show.

FINAL OUTDOOR FIGHTS ON TOMORROW

By JACK CONWAY

THE array of boxers who will compete in the Argonne A. A.'s final open-air show of the season at Braves Field tomorrow afternoon have completed their training. They will take things easy today so that they will have all of their pep when they whirl into action.

Jack Conway

As we see these lines, Eddie Morgan, manager of Jack Britton, is sitting next to my desk. Dan just finished telling me how the Old Master would polish off Jimmy McGonagle in their 10-round bout.

"Britton got a single when he licked Mickey Sears at Lynn," piped Dan. "He whacked out a double when he upset Pete Pechero at the Arena. He will make it a home run when he tips over McGonagle at the baseball orchard tomorrow afternoon.

"Next Tuesday at Portland, Britton will tackle Leddie Lee. You see, I don't want the old warrior to get rusty.

"Later on the promoters can bring on Al Mello. Some of my friends have told me not to match Britton with Mello. They say Al is too rough, very aggressive and a sweet socker. I ask, who has ever hurt Britton?

"I never thought much of south paws. They lack boxing style and if they cannot get the big sock over they are beaten. Britton has seen Mello in action and is of the opinion he is too shifty for the New England champion.

EDDIE MACK, matchmaker at the new Garden, conferred with Jack Kearns in New York in regard to matching Mickey Walker with the victor of the Flynn-Scozza bout.

It will be the second meeting between Scozza and Flynn. When this pair battled at Providence recently, Scozza won the verdict after a close, hard fight.

Mack feels confident he will be successful in lining up Walker to meet the young man who grabs Lew Award tomorrow afternoon.

IN the six round bouts, Al Del Galdo of New York a topnotcher, faces Johnny Scully of South Boston, while Jimmy Corcoran of Cambridge meets Jimmy Conley of Brockton, and Tommy Harper of Medford, takes on Tommy Short of South Boston. In the fours Tommy Plate faces Hugh King of Providence, while Connie Holmes meets Jimmy Scully and Joe Lepore of Lowell faces Tom Coyne of South Boston.

WESLEYAN TEAM READY FOR COLUMBIA GAME

Middletown, Oct. 11—Coach Bill Wood predicts that the Wesleyan team will be in fine form when it meets Columbia on Andrews field Saturday. The session this afternoon lasted for two hours following a half hour of relaxation in the gym sapping chocolate eggs and other delicacies.

NAVY HAS ALIBI FOR LOSS TO EAGLES

ates at Annapolis and rarely works in a Boston College game, Hub fans are certain that the Navy didn't get any the worst of it against the Eagles and they, like McKenney, feel that the Middies are anything but good sports to try to alibi now.

Eagle Players Give Version of Disputed Play

Here's what some of the B. C. players think about it.

CAPT. WARREN McGURK, TACKLE—The play was stopped a foot from the line. Castree's forward progress had been halted and when the whistle blew the Boston College line relaxed and the heavy Navy back fell over the goal line, holding the ball. At this point Referee Crowell put the ball on the fair side of the field.

TOM SMITH, FULLBACK—It's all wrong. Castree was stopped dead in his tracks a foot from the Maroon and Gold goal line when tackled by Capt. McGurk. I aided McGurk in the tackling of the Navy star and am certain that Castree did not go over the goal line before the whistle had blown.

JOE FRENO, CENTER—Castree was following his interference, which hit McGurk, just a few inches from the line. McGurk didn't even bother after Castree, running low, smashed into his own man and was stopped for a moment, enough for the referee to blow his whistle. When the pack here's down to play, the Navy back rolled over the line.

AL WESTON, QUARTERBACK—The play was pretty close, but Castree failed to cross the goal line before the whistle had blown.

WILLIAMS FROSH TEAM GIVES VARSITY BATTLE

Williamstown, Oct. 11—Making its first appearance of the year as an opponent of the varsity at scrimmage the Williams freshman eleven gave the regulars a great battle.

The only score in the hard-fought workout was a safety scored when a varsity back was thrown behind his own goal line by the first year men. The purple cubs displayed exceptional defence and time and again varsity again and again and finally advanced to the latter's two yard line when given possession of the ball.

STASIAK MEETS GRABOSKY TONIGHT

Stanley Stasiak, king of showmen, and Paul Grabosky, Polish giant, will clash tonight at the Grand Opera House in the first wrestling show of the season.

Stasiak, well known and well liked here for the past five years, rules a 10 to 8 favorite over his younger and faster opponent. The mountain is big and strong and rough, capable of holding his own with any grappler in the country.

The big fellow is in superb physical condition for his first bout of the year. He weighs 246 pounds, 50 more than Grabosky. He towers six feet four inches in height, two inches taller than Grabosky. And he is rough and awkward and hard.

Stasiak is determined to make this year his best. He wants to wrestle Gus Sonnenberg, for he is confident that he can whip the dynamiter. His confidence is based on a new hold which he has discovered.

What it is he refuses to divulge, even to his sparring partners, but he promises to put it on display tonight, to the great sorrow of Mr. Paul Grabosky.

Both Grabosky and Stasiak are Polish wrestlers, and there is not the least love lost between them. Last summer they featured the season at Warsaw, Poland, with a terrific three-hour draw, and when they renew their rivalry tonight the battle is bound to be a rough one.

Always a drawing card, Stasiak will look out upon another capacity crowd tonight. The crowds have been making reservations at Paul Bowser's office, 333 Washington st., Room 830, all through the week, and it is a certainty that the wrestling game will get away to the best start in its history tonight.

New McGuire, Irish giant, who also seeks an opportunity of testing Sonnenberg's flying tackle, will meet Jack Warner of Omaha, the Western whirlwind, in the semi-final bout.

John Spellman, former Brown football star and Olympic wrestling champion, will tackle Clevio Massino of Italy, another recent arrival on the side of the water.

All the bouts on the card are to be a finish, the first two one-fall to a finish, and the Stasiak-Grabosky match two falls out of three.

MR. BOSTON

By Jack Conway

"FOOTBALL is king," said Mr. Boston as he maced Myles McSweeney for a couple of duckats for the Boston College Duke game which will be staged at Fenway Park tomorrow afternoon. "For a couple of weeks the gridiron game has been struggling to get on the front page, but it has received too much opposition from Ruth, Gehrig & Co.

"Now that the Yanks have once more proved they are the boss of the baseball works football will rule the sport world until after Thanksgiving Day.

"The Boston College-Duke tilt is the leading holiday attraction. Joe McKenney has the Eagles flying high. Even the heavy guns of the Navy couldn't bring the Eagles down. While the future Admirals were shooting away Weston and the other Maroon and Gold heroes whanged across a winning touchdown.

"When McKenney was first named as Boston College coach, the so-called football strategists declared he was too young to succeed at such an important post. Boston College's showing against the Navy has silenced this group.

"Hop out to Fenway Park tomorrow afternoon and take a peek at a regular football team.

"BASEBALL fans are now football fans. This is probably why the national pastime loses interest with the public the minute the final out is made in the World Series.

"A week after the series, barring some scandal or big trade, baseball interest is at a low ebb.

"Folks are then working every possible angle to line up tickets for the big football games.

"Speaking of tickets, have you been able to secure reservations for the Harvard-Army game which will be staged at the stadium a week from Saturday?

"The Harvard Athletic Association declares it has received more requests for reservations for this contest than for any game carded this year other than the Harvard-Yale clash.

"Everybody wants to be on hand when the Cadets parade in the stadium.

"Governor Fuller is to be congratulated for arranging a special parade and drill on Boston Common on the day of the game. This will enable thousands who cannot get tickets for the stadium battle to see Uncle Sam's West Pointers doing their stuff. It will be the first cadet parade in Boston since 1812. Even Jack Britton cannot remember that far back.

"THE hundreds of schoolboy football games throughout New England will also play to large holiday crowds.

"There was once a time when only the students and graduates attended these contests. Now the general public is as much interested in the important gridiron clashes of the home town school as it is in baseball or a big fight.

Bouts Last Night

Philadelphia—Johnny Bolger, Boston, outpointed Tommy Rocco, Elwood City, Pa. (10). Jack McFarland, Pittsburgh, outpointed Walter Dunaven, California, Pa., 8 others.

Start November 20

Boston Bruins will open their 1923-29 home season in Boston Madison Square Garden on Tuesday night, November 20, according to an announcement made yesterday by President Charles F. Adams of the club. Their opponents will be Les Canadiens of Montreal.

SCHOOL BOY SPORTS

A fairly large crowd saw Jamaica Plain defeat Charlestown at Braves Field in the first game of the season for Charlestown.

Jamaica Plain got started in the first period and scored a touchdown on an intercepted forward pass which Shuman, Jamaica right tackle, kicked out of the air in his own territory. Aldrich kicked the try point successfully, putting his team into the lead, 7 to 0.

In the final period Jamaica Plain came near scoring another touchdown on repeated line smashes. The ball went to Charlestown's two-yard line but the alert end-play of the Charlestown wingman prevented another score.

Charlestown has a couple of boys who look good although they are newcomers this year. They are Joe Dooley, left tackle, and John Crowley, substitute lineman.

The Wakefield-Woburn game has been cancelled from Woburn to Wakefield. Both teams are [illegible] in their final when they meet the Tanners Saturday.

So far this season Wakefield has lost two games and won one. Methuen won the opening game, but the Heathmen came back to win over Punchard. Melrose pinned a defeat on Wakefield last Saturday.

Here is the balance of the Wakefield schedule: Oct. 13, Woburn, Oct. 20, Watertown; Oct. 27, Winchester at Winchester; Nov. 3, Lexington; Nov. 10, Arlington; Nov. 17, Hearing at Reading.

Coach Duffy of Jamaica Plain thinks a great deal of O'Brien's work at center. O'Brien is doing great work at the pivot position for Purple and Gold.

Winthrop misses the services of John Ritchie, last year's end. Ritchie is ineligible because he is over age. If he were in there teamed up with Gloria, these two stars would make Winthrop a tough team to down.

Babe and Lou Supreme | How to Stop Yanks
N. L. Needs Help | Uncle Robby Explains
Series Owners Lose | McKechnie to Go

By NICK FLATLEY

CARDINALS WILL BE GOATS OF WINTER BASEBALL

THE boys have started to propose remedies for the National League in the World Series of the future. The shellacking the Yanks handed the Cards, after mopping up the Pirates the year before, has convinced the boys that the N. L. will run a poor second as long as Messrs. Ruth and Gehrig linger around.

Nick Flatley

Al Schacht, a bit of a comedian, opines that the only hope for any team is to restrain the big pair to one trip to the plate per game.

"And then the other manager would have to pick his spots," Al adds.

It has been suggested that the National Leaguers be spotted three games by the Yanks. Then the series would have to go seven games. In that way the club owners would get a little profit.

These four in a row things are tough on the magnates, but they do prove the honesty of baseball. Colonel Ruppert lost $50,000 on the series a year ago and as much more in the recent abbreviated collision. Sam Breadon of the Cardinals will be lucky if he breaks even.

The funereal moans of the magnates as they are handing back more than $100,000 that was paid in for the three games that never were played can be heard above the cheering of the football crowds.

It is tough on the owners, though they do clean up in the course of a pennant winning year. They need that extra money nowadays to meet the salary demands that the athletes think up during the winter.

No team in the game has been panned more than the Cards these last few days. The grilling will keep up all winter until managerial changes take the boys' minds off the greatest Ruth series.

ONE MORE SERIES AND CONGRESS WILL BE ASKED TO DECLARE A NEW NATIONAL HOLIDAY AND CALL IT BABE RUTH DAY.

Hammered the ball and hammered it well,
Speaker and Cobb, old Brouthers and Del,
But nary a one—and this is the truth—
Was anywhere close to the only Babe Ruth.

UNCLE ROBBY TELLS HOW TO STOP THE BABE

Uncle Wilbert Robinson, the chubby mandarin of Brooklyn, has one of the keenest sets of all the baseball men. He admits that Ruth is the greatest, by far, of all ball players. And Uncle Wilbert has been around for more than a few years, and has seen them all.

A couple of more or less experienced scribes asked him if he could stop Ruth and Gehrig if his Brooklyn club were facing them.

"Sure I could stop them," chirped Robby. "It would be easy. I'd make the pitchers pass them."

"But how about Lazzeri and Meusel, who come up next?"

"Pass them."

"And how about the catchers, they can hit?"

"Pass them, too, and make pitchers win their own games," was Uncle Wilbert's parting shot. The young men left.

It was the game Uncle Wilbert, waked by a terrific clap of thunder the night after the first game, who blinked his eyes and muttered:

"My God, Ruth and Gehrig are out for batting practice already."

Then he went to sleep again.

THE CARDS WILL HAVE HORRIBLE DREAMS ABOUT THE BABE AND LOU DURING THE WINTER, BUT $417? THAT EACH ONE COLLECTED WILL ACT AS QUITE A PANACEA.

The worst pitcher on the Yanks is the luckiest chucker in the league. He never has to lose them up to the thumping twins.

McKECHNIE LIKELY TO DEPART FROM ST. LOUIS

MANAGER WILLIAM McKECHNIE rushed into his civies immediately after the last game of the series, grabbed a train and started for home. He did not hang around that dear St. Louis to confer with the club owners, or to talk salaries to players, or to answer the million and one whys that would have been tossed at him.

All he wanted to do was to get away from there. Which makes it look as if William might be managing somewhere else another season. Such an abrupt departure is unusual. Generally a manager, who is going to stick, hangs around for a few days. They don't like losers in St. Louis.

This, it might be mentioned, is going to be a large winter in the shifting and trading leagues. Bucky Harris has gone already from Washington. According to rumor, he will succeed George Moriarity at Detroit.

There are whispers that Donie Bush will move away from Pittsburgh, that Bill Killifer will come to manage the Braves when Hornsby goes to the Cubs. About which, more anon.

It is going to be a busy baseball winter. Owners of potential pennant teams in both leagues are looking for fighting managers. The undisputed sway of the murderous Yanks has baseball all rolled up.

BOWDOIN COACH IS DEVELOPING DEFENCE

Brunswick, Me., Oct. 11—Coach Mal Morrell began drilling his Bowdoin squad with a special view of working up a defense for the Williams plays expected to be used in the game Saturday.

The Bowdoin players are in good physical condition, with the exception of Lancaster, regular quarterback. Howard Stiles or Tom Braman will fill Lancaster's place in Saturday's game, while Gordon Larcom, Lloyd Merrill, Phil Chapman and Stuart Stone will be used in the other backfield positions.

Injuries Blast Hopes of Amherst

Amherst, Oct. 11—A series of injuries during the mid-week scrimmage here wrecked whatever chances Amherst and entertained of defeating Haverford Saturday.

In the first few minutes Grookless, star backfield man, wrenched his shoulder and will be unable to play against the Pennsylvanians.

Heisey, Harris and Tener, all varsity candidates, will be unable to participate as a result of the severe scrimmage. Tener, a consistent ground gainer in the first two games, chipped a piece of his right ankle bone and will be out some time.

With the line functioning poorly and a makeshift backfield at best Coach White is faced with a tough problem. The Pennsylvanians, while light in line and backfield, have the jump on Amherst, since every man that played against the Lord Jeff gridsters last season will be in the lineup.

Bull Turner, Whitney, Kirk and Stearns, a fairly strong nucleus in the center of the forward line, gives the Purple mentor his only cheerful outlook.

KEECH AND DURAY ARE FAVORED

Winning Speed Chariot Must Average Well Over 100 Miles Per Hour

Fourteen of the world's greatest automobile race drivers await the gun to send them whirling around the Rockingham Speedway oval in the 200-mile sweepstakes tomorrow afternoon.

After qualifying tests in which 17 participated, the field was reduced to 14 for the sake of safety, since it is almost a surety that better than 100 miles per hour will be established by the winner.

In fact this 200-mile run stands first in the matter of major races where the maximum of speed may be obtained, since the only other great race, the Indianapolis 500-mile derby is run on a track which does not permit the great speed of the Rockingham saucer.

As usual, there are certain outstanding drivers. In the field are Ray Keech, winner of the event July 4 and holder of the world record of 207.5 miles per hour on the straightaway at Daytona Beach. Leon Duray, who set a mark of 148.1 miles per hour on a curved track will be Keech's chief rival, and the two have an old score to settle, Duray will be out for revenge in not winning the July event.

Dave Evans, driving a new combination Miller Special, front drive machine, is expected to be the dark horse of the event. He has kept the best performances of his new car pretty much under cover, but enough is known about it to install him as one of the chief threats of the field.

MANY STARS ENTERED

Lou Moore, who won second place in last Indianapolis Derby and finished well up in the 200-mile event at Rockingham in July, is showing the same dashing speed that stamped him, within a few months of his entry into big league circles as one of the best on the tracks.

Earl Devore, Cliff Woodbury, Fabe Stapp, Bob McDonough, Ralph Hepburn, Norman Batten, Jeff Wagoner, Fred Comer and Billy Garrison, all are veterans of the race game of years standing, and always are found battling for the money in the biggest events in the year.

Keech will again depend on his Simplex Piston Ring Special to hurry him across the line a winner. He has been barnstorming of late at State fairs and cleaning up everything in sight.

Seven Miller Specials will be in line. Duray and Lou Moore have carried Miller colors to victory in many events, and Evans, with his Miller engine and Duesenberg chassis combination, may lead them all across the finish line.

Secretary Arthur H. Means and the special committee of officials of the A. A. A arrived in town early enough to take a preliminary look at the track and put their O. K. on it. The race marks the finish of the official A. A. A. season in the East and the final point reckoning for the year will be made immediately upon the outcome of this race.

CAPACITY CROWD EXPECTED

A capacity crowd is looked for at the track, for never has there been such an advance sale for an automobile race in this section. Traffic arrangements have been perfected to take care of an overflow crowd and the police of the surrounding cities and towns all are working in co-operation to make the trip to and from the track a pleasurable one.

Al Hart, well known Boston automobile merchant and sportsman will again serve as referee and the race will start exactly on scheduled time. Jack Kerrison will be the starter and an efficient corps of timers and clockers will be on the job. Every little detail for the comfort of the crowd has been attended to.

A full corps of ushers assures each seat holder of his rightful place. Red Cross nurses, a completely equipped hospital room and every other thing in anticipation of emergencies which may arise in such a gathering as is expected, has been provided for.

The sport has taken a great hold on the public here and if the July 4 race is any criterion, an afternoon replete with thrills awaits the speed enthusiasts.

MANY ENTER FOR ST. JOE'S BOUTS ON SATURDAY

Entries for the weekly St. Joseph's A. A. amateur show, to be held in Commercial Hall, Bowdoin sq., on Saturday night, are flocking to William H. Cuddy, director of the tournament, at 833 Washington st., room 315.

Chief interest centers in the heavyweight class, which is open to all, and it is expected that at least four big boys will strive for the first prize, which happens to be a watch. In addition to the heavyweight class, the 112, 135, 147 and 160 pounds divisions will be open to all comers.

The 118 and 126 pounds classes will be for novices.

FLASHING AROUND TRACK AT 140 PER

WHAT CHANCE HAVE THE RECORDS

Leon Duray, great auto race driver, is shown circling the wooden saucer at Rockingham at 140 miles per hour. Leon is after a win in the 200 mile race tomorrow. It is the final big auto race of the year. The Rockingham track is said to be the fastest in the country. So a new record is probable.

THE WILLIAM G. BELL CO., Boston, MASS.

Group I at the average cost of 10 cents a pound. Apples, bananas in season, fresh vegetables, beets, cabbage, carrots, kale, onions, parsnips potatoes, pumpkins, sauer kraut, squash, tomatoes (in the height of their local season), turnips, dried peas and beans.

Group II—From 10c to 20c a pound, peaches and the fall fruits in season, oranges and cranberries, celery, chard, cucumbers and smaller squashes, dandelion and other spring greens, egg plant, kohlrabi okra, spinach at the height of the season and certain of the dried fruits, and tomatoes between seasons.

Group III—From 20c to 30c are berries in season, Brussels sprouts cauliflower, cucumbers, most of the year, eggplants, lettuce, peas, radishes, spinach, except at the height of the season, string beans and certain dried fruits.

From 30c to 50c a pound come asparagus, French artichokes, French endive, lettuce the greater part of the year, green peppers, radishes and cucumbers, the more expensive fruits and out-of-season vegetables.

From this list you will see that the highest priced vegetables are not always the most nutritious or tobacco, which is often called cauliflower with a college education, is more valuable than cauliflower combining all three vitamines and a larger proportion of valuable mineral salts and roughage.

Carrots are considered higher in food value than beets, though they hardly ever sell at a higher price.

Maybe you are saving you don't care for any of my five bargain vegetables but I can assure you they can be cooked to tempt a most finicky appetite.

To prove it here's a recipe for carrots and turnips.

Irish Carrots and Turnips—Use four parts turnip and one part carrot, measuring it before cooking. Boil until tender white turnips are cut young carrots in cubes and boil these until tender. Drain the turnips well and press them through a potato ricer. Drain once more and combine the two vegetable Season with salt and pepper and butter.

Carrot Croquettes with Green Pea Sauce—Boil carrots; press through a sieve. Add 2 beaten eggs, 1-3 c of milk and 2 c. of soft, sifted bread crumbs for more if necessary to mold into shape) to 2 c. of the carrots. Add salt and pepper to taste. Dip the croquettes into flour, beaten egg and bread crumbs. Fry in deep fat.

Drain and serve with 1¼ c. of white sauce to which has been added 1 c. of peas. This is lovely for luncheon, served with sliced, cold meat. The mixture is so soft that it's hard to shape, but the result is well worth the effort.

Bye for today,

Enhancing Loveliness

By MARIA JERITZA.

GREAT painters find supreme inspiration in the portrayal of mother love. Madonna portrait, for instance, illustrates the exquisite beauty of happy, healthy motherhood.

Mothers should attain a high degree of beauty, for a woman reaches the natural flowering of her nature through married love and healthy motherhood, and motherhood should mean harmonious, beautiful, self-realization and self-fulfillment.

The theory that motherhood destroys a woman's loveliness and youthfulness is based on that misery of woman to household drudgery which existed before the era of labor-saving inventions. Neverending, back-breaking housework, plus ignorance of how to care for herself and her children scientifically and hygien ally, cause the average woman of these days to fade and age prematurely.

But Mme. Louise Homer, Mme. Schumann-Heink, Lady Astor and hosts of less famous women are proving today, in their own experience, that a woman can rear a large family, maintain a happy home—even follow an outside career, as well—without sacrificing the lots of her natural charm and beauty.

The successful wife and mother is engaged in the most important business in the world—homemaking—a task transcending all others in its universal appeal.

To be successful, she must devote energy, time, skill, patience to her task, and meet all the practical needs of the home without loss of her alert interest in the outside world or the personal attractiveness and beauty that give her value as companion, sweetheart, wife and mother. It is just as important to be wholesome and pleasant to look at as to be an efficient cook and housekeeper.

Wise management of household tasks leaves intervals for outdoor exercise and for care of the hair, teeth, nails, hands and complexion. While the children are at school, for instance, and the house is quiet, you can surely manage a brief half hour of complete relaxation—a refreshing nap in a darkened room followed by your daily bath. When you order the day's menus, walk to a not-too-near market, taking time in his perambulator, if need be. This daily hour of outdoor exercise, rain or shine, will do you worlds of good.

Do not neglect cleansing cold cream, a refreshing skin tonic, such as eau de cologne, fragrant talc powder and plenty of warm and cooling cold water as complements to pills. A weekly trip to a beauty parlor is an investment in cash worth every cent it costs. Pretty nails, a chic coiffure and a velvety complexion should be your pride, just as they were before you married.

A house dress may cost only two and a half dollars, but if it is of a becoming, dainty color and is cut it will give your husband an attractive memory-picture of you during the day.

Belden on Age-Before-Your-Time Diseases

By DR. BRICE BELDEN

A HEALTHY old age, called senectude, is a perfectly normal condition. Its changes are natural, that the same changes, occurring before their time, constitute a diseased condition.

How many millions of dollars a year are spent on the preservation of youth?

There would be enough money to solve the housing problem for the world if science discovered the preventive of "old-before-your-time" disease. All the energy directed at present to curing disease might then be used to help people to live happily and harmoniously.

What are the facts?

We grow obese or emaciated in a few short years after reaching our prime. In the early forties, men and women should be young. But how many are gray and toothless, wrinkled and bald, thus showing the signs of the "age-before-your time" disease? It is under these circumstances that old age as we know it is a disease, not a peaceful passing of the years. And, let me add, that is why every one of us, if we are honest, must admit that we hate growing old today.

If we cut a strand of hair from the human head, it keeps its golden gloss untouched by time. Why does the same hair, growing on the scalp, turn gray? Why do we grow bald as young as 25 sometimes, when we should be straight and strong and vital long past our 50th birthday? That is a problem that must be seriously studied. The prevention of premature senility — these before-your-time disease—the ugly disease—would be one of the medical miracles of this century.

Only a few years ago, smallpox spoiled the beauty of millions of men and women, but a needle prick and a smear of vaccine have taken the dread of this hideous disease from mankind. Knowledge of the facts and laws of our beings and of our relation to our surroundings at once removes fear, gives us power and some measure of happiness. When we know enough we shall not hate old age but simply because we then shall have overcome its disabilities.

Chemists and physicians are probing the secret in every country in the civilized world. Wonderful work is being done in connection with the "internal glands" about which I have written repeatedly and which influence temperament and character, beauty, health and happiness. It is extraordinary to think, for instance, that the pituitary gland, a little mass of cells no bigger than the tip of a finger lying behind the eyes at the base of the brain, can send a message, a command, to the long bones of the body which will make a human being grow into a giant or remain a dwarf.

We know, that the failure of pituitary and thyroid glands and of the internal secretion of the sex glands makes us stolid and lumpy in the forties. We also know that perfect masculinity and femininity, poise of mind and body, are gifts of these mysterious glands during their period of natural activity.

The internal glands are guilty, in part, when hair falls from the scalp and wholly guilty when mustaches sprout on the upper-lip of middle-aged despairing women. They are guilty of all sorts of unhappiness and a good many of the "sins" which we condemn because we know and understand so little how to manage them and especially how to prolong their efficiency.

The internal secretory glands produce each of them a "hormone," a chemical messenger, which is poured into the blood stream, affecting our behavior and our intellectual and love life to an extraordinary degree.

Much has been done and more will be done to determine the practicability of prolonging internal gland influence by grafting young healthy glands into persons whose own glands have become inactive. Most encouraging results so far have been realized and give us reason to hope for perfect masculinity and femininity.

Miss Fairfax on Heartbreaks

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

"KEEPING steady company and pre-engagement understanding are two factors of modern courtship that frequently cause heartache and bitterness. The difficulty arises from the fact that a pre-engagement understanding is usually a very vague, indefinite, unsatisfactory substitute for a betrothal, and either amounts to or leads to a misunderstanding in the majority of cases.

The girl who keeps "steady company," but is not engaged, having refused all outside invitations and discouraged all friendships save the one, finds herself as lonely and unhappy as a fish out of water, when, as often happens, the steady companionship ceases.

It is selfish of any man to ask a young woman to repudiate all friends save himself so far as masculine companionship is concerned, unless he also proves his love by asking her to be his lifelong companion—in other words—his wife. The man is more than selfish who insists that a girl shall refuse all companionship save his own while he goes about freely with many girls.

"Dear Miss Fairfax," writes J. M. L., "in this matter, will you please help me with my problem?

"Bob and I have gone steadily with each other for more than a year. Our little romance seemed so happy and I thought it would never end. We love each other dearly.

"About four months ago we were to have become engaged. But something happened and our engagement was put off until the coming Christmas.

"Ever since that time Bob has been different. He still tells me I am the only one he loves. But he says he is tired of the same routine and wants to go out for some pleasure and excitement. Now he takes other girls out and sees me less. He says he will care a lot more if he does not see me so often.

"Several nights a week he goes out while I sit at home. I think he expects I will run to sit at home and be true, while he is out having a good time with someone else.

"What would you advise me to do? I am afraid that if he keeps this up I will lose him altogether. I love him more than anything and I can't give him up, especially since he tells me he loves me.

"We were planning our engagement and were to be married next June. But now I think this is all forgotten now. I suppose he does want a change. But do you think that he will soon come back to you more eager than ever for the engagement and marriage. And, if he is not really deeply in love—then you would have to lose him, in any event, would you not? And your pre-engagement understanding could not hold him to you.

Affection, good sense and friendly tolerance will guide you safely through this mist of misunderstanding, dear. All happiness and success to you!

Correct Manners

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Please tell me the regulations concerning mourning for a man?

READER

A MAN usually wears a black suit for the funeral, and wears this black suit afterward to church and on special occasions, but ordinarily, except for this, he does not go into mourning.

To business, he wears suits of dark mixtures, and is particularly careful about the accessories—a dark tie, of course, black shoes, black socks, black gloves, when he wears gloves, and a white (not a colored or striped) shirt.

In winter he wears a sleeve band of dull broadcloth on his coats and overcoats, and on his summer suits he wears a band of serge. (This band should not be of crepe.) This band is from three and a half to four inches wide and is worn on the left sleeve just below the elbow.

The whole question of mourning is in a state of change, since nowadays so many people do not wear it at all and since there is a decided reaction against crepe or any of the other heavy-hearted materials of what we used to call "heavy mourning." Nowadays, as a rule, people wear dark clothes after the death of a near relative, but they do not swathe themselves in black as they used to do.

Fresh Color and Flavor

ONLY the choicest of fruits and vegetables are picked at the moment of ripeness, are offered you in glass jars and tumblers. You can see their full form and natural color on the dealer's shelf. You cannot know their fresh flavor and aroma until their appetizing goodness has come apparent on your table.

For quality, convenience and variety, choose fruit, vegetables, fish and meats, as well as household necessities that come packed in attractive glass containers with handy seals.

You may find some glass-packed food products a trifle more expensive, but remember, they are select quality and full measure.

IT TAKES ALL-BRAN TO RELIEVE CONSTIPATION

More and more people are eating bran for "health's sake" these days. And it's a fine thing. But not everybody realizes what a difference there is in so-called "brans." Doctors say it takes 100% bran to supply enough roughage to relieve constipation. Part-bran products, at best, can only be partly effective.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is 100% bran. It furnishes roughage in effective quantities—and in the most effective form: cooked and krumbled. Part-bran products cannot hope to equal. Two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal—are guaranteed to relieve constipation.

Serve ALL-BRAN often. With milk or cream—fruits or honey added. Be sure you get genuine Kellogg's though—in the red-and-green-package. Use it in cooking. Sprinkle into soups. ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Hot Biscuits for Breakfast—an easier and better way

Strange, isn't it, that when Mother announces "Hot biscuits for breakfast," everyone hops out of bed without any urging?

Just try this time-saving scheme and we'll wager your family will have hot biscuits for breakfast often.

Whenever you make biscuits for the evening meal, mix up enough extra dough for the following morning. Have your biscuits all cut out, put them in the pan and keep them overnight where it's cold. All you have to do the next morning is to heat your oven and bake them.

Try this tested recipe for biscuits given below. Made with Crisco they are light, tender, fluffy and snowy-white.

Mailer Recipe
for "Rolled" Biscuits

2 cups bread flour	¾ cup milk or water (for "drop" biscuits)
4 teaspoons baking powder	or
½ teaspoon salt	½ cup milk or water (for "rolled" biscuits)
4 tablespoons Crisco

Sift dry ingredients together 3 times. Work Crisco in with fork. Add liquid gradually.

Form dough into shape, roll ½ inch thick, cut. For scone-shaped biscuits, cut squares, then diagonally in half. Brush top of biscuits with melted Crisco or milk. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) 15 to 20 minutes. Makes about 12 biscuits.

To use buttermilk or sour milk beat in ½ teaspoon soda for each cup of milk. (If milk is very thick, use a little more milk.) Use same amount of baking powder and follow method for either "drop" or "rolled" biscuits.

You taste your milk—
You test your eggs—

NOW—taste your shortening!

Crisco's sweet flavor will delight you!

Crisco is the registered trade-mark of a shortening manufactured by The Procter & Gamble Company

This Day in History

On October 11, 1918, the British drove the Germans out of Ivry (on the Selle river and Scheldt Canal) and the village of Briastre, between the Scarpe and Quiery-la-Motte. They also took five other important villages.

STOLEN LOVE

Author of "The SECRET STUDIO"

Will Any Man Love a Girl Who Has a Past She Tries to Hide?

CHAPTER 22

"HOW does anyone know she's in love?" Joan whispered to Curtis. "How do you tell? I don't know—I don't know really!"

But she clung to him, pressed her wet face against his hot cheek, wouldn't let him go. "Joan, it means so much . . . answer me, dear, tell me the truth." She wouldn't answer, and he only knew that he loved her, and she was beautiful. She lay limp and relaxed in his arms, letting him kiss her again and again, her lips parted, her wet eyes closed . . . Don't ever let me go, Curtis. Don't ever forget me . . . ever . . . promise me you won't . . ."

She kissed him then, and where she kissed him his face was wet, so that he knew she was crying still, crying when he was telling her, trying to tell her of his love. . . .

"Forget you, Joan? Don't you understand? I love you. I'm asking you to marry me, I'm not going to run away—"

"No, no—not that—not marriage, Curtis. Not now. Please, not now," she cried unreasonably, looking at him with haunted, swimming eyes. "I don't want to be married, not for a long time anyway. Please don't ask me, will you? Please don't, Curtis—"

"Joan, don't play with me!" What was she saying, this girl he loved?

"I'm not playing," she went on in that small, tortured voice. "I just don't want—oh, please, don't be cross with me—please don't—I can't bear it when you look at me like that—"

"You don't want me to forget it, and you don't want my love, you know what you do want, then!"

The coldness in his voice frightened her. She clutched him tighter. Mike don't stop liking me—"

He looked down at her, silently. "I won't stop liking you," he said at last. "I'm afraid I couldn't to that now. Not very easily. It's too late. But you won't mind if I go now, will you? I have work to do, work that may keep me occupied for some time—"

"You're not coming back?" He freed her clinging hands. "I'll come back, Joan." He must go . . . it away . . . while he could still keep his voice steady . . . He stooped and kissed her once more. "Good-by—take care of yourself!"

He was gone.

Joan slipped to her knees beside the couch, buried her face, sobbing, in the silk cushions. Maisie had made, gorgeous, ticklish ones, trimmed with gold lace and flowers, remnants from the workshop.

Maisie came in from the kitchen, her hands all floury. "I heard the door shut. Isn't he going to stay for dinner? Oh, Johnnie, an' I was makin' biscuits—"

The young man from the newspaper was in the shop sketching costumes for the Spring Fashions Edition. He wore a very shiny old blue suit, and his nose was much too big. Still, he was a man, so Ruth hovered near him, chattering while he worked.

"Say, who's the tall blonde over there?"

The first sign of life from him, and that about Joan. "Well, you're wasting your time getting interested in that," she said scornly. "That's Joan Hastings, and she's going to marry Curtis Barstow—so that's that. Sketch a parsnip. Anything else you want to know?"

He laughed, and patted her hand, conveniently near. "Young attorney weds shop girl, eh?"

"I should say not—she's Madame's protegee, and she's supposed to be somebody or other—"

The young man had finished his drawings, he beamed on Ruth and went away.

Just after closing time the telephone rang. The girls had all gone so Francine answered it herself.

"Curtis Barstow's engagement to Joan Hastings announced! She almost dropped the receiver! A picture? The newspaper wanted a picture? Yes, she had several pictures of Miss Hastings. . . no, she didn't know very much about the young lady except that she was a granddaughter of some important people. Van Fleet she thought the name was. Yes, they lived in Saussalito—"

After she gave the picture she wondered if she should have spoken to Joan about it first. Joan was so queer about things . . . better not say any thing about it . . . let her wonder where they got it.

For an engaged girl Joan looked awfully glum. "Maybe she's worrying about what old lady Barstow will say when the story comes out," Francine thought, noting the dark circles under Joan's eyes and the listless droop to her shoulders "Wonder what the old lady will say? . . . wonder if Ma knows, and never told me, the old stinker."

Twice she was on the point of speaking about it, but with Joan so downcast, perhaps she had better not. Better not say anything at all until it came out in the paper . . .

And come out it did, a beautiful society "scoop" for the young man's sheet. A three column picture of Joan, an account of Curtis brilliant career. "A real nice writeup," Francine decided, "especially the part about the Van Fleets. I had no idea they were so swell."

Lyla Barstow glanced over the papers Curtis dropped in her lap. There was just a moment before dinner. She read the headlines on the front page. Yawned, and turner to "Society"—not that there was ever anything interesting . .

"Curtis"— She managed to say his name quite naturally, to point to the article and ask, "What does this mean?" before the full significance of it reached her. The glaring headline, the picture of Joan . . . To read it in a newspaper . . . get the first news of it that way . . . her only son's engagement.

"Why didn't you tell me?" She covered her face with her hands "Surely you could have told . . . your mother . . ."

"Good Lord!" He dropped the paper, picked it up again. Skimmed it in his pocket, grabbed his hat.

The door slammmed behind him.

Joan was trembling, trembling and very cold through the steam heat was on and the little dining room was bright and warm. Her shaking hands, holding the newspaper Curtis had brought, were damn and clammy. She wiped one, furtively, on her skirt, don't understand, Curtis. Why did they print it? When it isn't true, it isn't true . . ."

"That's why it hurts," he said in the flat, tired voice that didn't sound like his voice at all.

Maisie drew in her breath sharply. A query, whistling sound. She wanted to get away, into the kitchen, but her fat legs failed her. They wouldn't carry her away.

She might have been a way woman for all the two at the table noticed her. They stood there with the crumpled paper spread over the cloth, one edge dripping in a coffee cup, their eyes averted, ashamed. Curtis' face was stony and gray, Joan's chin was quivering piteously.

"I don't know why they did it," Joan moaned. "I don't understand."

Why didn't Curtis say something to comfort her? Why didn't he tell her he was glad they made a mistake, the simpleton. Maisie fumed. And suddenly she heard herself saying in a loud voice, "It isn't any disgrace is it? If I was a man I'd be proud to be engaged to her—"

Curtis turned, conscious of her for the first time. His mouth jerked "I should be very proud," he said simply, "if it were true."

His eyes met Joan's. She was looking at him now, seeing his suffering, reading the appeal that he would never again put into words. He wanted it to be true . . . wanted it more than anything in the world . . . poor Curtis . . . wanting that . . . And suddenly her face was alight, her head went up proudly She put out her hands to him. "I'd be—proud too, Curtis" She took the first step toward him, not waiting for him to come, saying: "If you want me, can't it be true?" The old Joan again. Generous. Not counting costs.

"Joan, do you mean that?"

"Yes—yes—" She went into his arms, laughing and crying at the same time . . . so happy . . . so happy that she had not failed him Curtis, who wanted her so.

It was so funny, the boat that brought the evening papers to Saussalito was late. At Gerwin's garage Dolores waited for hers impatiently. She liked to read while she was getting dinners.

The water boiled out of the saucepan. The stench of scorched potatoes filled the little cupboard house Dolores lay face downward on her bed, the article she had cut out with a hairpin clenched in her hand.

When Gerwin came home she was on her way to the postoffice, clutching a square pink envelope to her heart Her eyes glittered unnaturally, a strand of her dark hair escaped from her hat, giving her a wild, demoniacal look. The little girls, frightened and fascinated, followed at a discreet distance . . . Miss Gerwin's hair was falling down and she was talking to herself . . .

"Topk the man I loved away from me . . . thought . . . you was smart . . . I'll show you now . . . I'll pay you back. . ."

The pink envelope was addressed to Curtis Barstow, Kennedy, Hart & Farnsbee, Attorneys, and because it was on pink paper the office boy put it with the personal mail, though it might be business after all.

Curtis slit the envelope with the quick, precise movement that was habitual with him. Opened the crowded sheets, read them with amazement and disgust.

Dear Friend—

I take this opportunity to warn you before it is too late. Joan Hastings stole my lover and broke my heart, and I'll be damned if I'll let her do you and disgrace you like she done her own family. If you don't want a life of misery get rid of her before it is too late. She was expelled I from school on account of her actions. She run away with a sailor when she was only 15. Besides other things she did. Her sister was in the Glen Island. "A Friend."

"Whew! Wonder what crank wrote this!" He dropped it promptly into the waste basket. "Dirty crank." His face darkened To think that Joan, white, innocent Joan, should be the victim of a filthy, anonymous letter like that. I'd like to get my hands on—or her people—whoever wrote it—"

Saussalito! It was postmarked Saussalito. Joan's old home. So—! Curtis was no poet, demented crank after all . . . a deliberate attempt to make trouble . . . he picked the pink sheet up again, read them over. Some illiterate, malicious woman, a discharged servant, perhaps. He stuffed it into his pocket. He'd ask Joan if there was someone who might write her. He would.

But he never thought of it again. Whenever he saw Joan he forgot everything but the wonder of her, the miracle of their love, Joan, sweet, beautiful Joan to be his . . .

He walked on air. His world was a rosy place, and he really won her, the girl of his dreams.

"Think of getting a girl like Joan Hastings, mother! Mother, do you realize what that means? Now aren't you glad I didn't fall in with your ideas about Eugenia? She's a peach and all that—but Joan —I can't tell you. She's not a transplanted flower that grew up in a clean air away from the dust and dirt of the cities . . . she's the bloom left on . . ."

"I know, Curtis. But isn't she just a little fortunate in finding you, too?"

"I want the wedding to be soon but she's such a funny, shy little thing—I don't want to rush her too much. Do you suppose I could get her to consent to May?"

"May"

"Or April—"

"Curtis—so soon?" Her heart sank.

Curls Return to Favor

DRAWN BY Dorothy Flack

FASHION NOTE: "Femininity is once more the style. Curls are returning to favor, along with ruffles and bows and frillier styles. The boyish bob is a thing of the past and the newer fashions show a marked return to the reign of Femininity."

Now what more could one ask? After all the talk we've been hearing about "What will come of it all? Why won't girls be girls instead of boyish looking creatures that goodness only knows where they'll stop when it comes to style?

Or, let's pack away the slips and get out the lavender and old lace. Or, better still, pack away the slips and get out the lavender and old laces from the bottom of great, grandmother's trunks and be thoroughly modern and up-to-date.

And so the pendulum never swings so far but that it just naturally HAS to swing back again. And that's what has happened to fashions

Girls have fallen in love with frames around hair, lovely little faces. Ruffles will billow and flow like softly babbling brooks. Laces and ribbon bows are in fashion and miles of frilly thi gs are again in the fore. So hats off to the old new and the new in feminine, curls looked loveliness when mother was a girl.

"Soon? Call that soon? I'd be married now if she'd agree. Why don't you help me out a little? Yes I her long engagements are unlucky. Go on—help me out—"

She touched his cheek with [illegible] dedicate, blue-veined hand . . . [illegible] Curtis . . . how could she let him go"

So much to do. She'd helped him so. She had taken [illegible] clothes all his life, [illegible] and not and ties . . . would Joan take all that from her?

She remembered she hadn't sent that brown suit to the cleaner. Should to be left in the hall closet for Annie to give to the cleaner tomorrow. Automatically her fingers searched the pockets for the memorandums and loose change he never remembered to take out.

A pink letter. She laid it on the hall table with a shudder. Anyone who would use pink paper, and purple ink to give the cleaner tomorrow. Automatically her fingers searched the pockets for the memorandums and loose change he never remembered to take out.

A pink letter. She laid it on the hall table with a shudder. Anyone who would use pink paper, and purple ink

There was no envelope. Automatically her fingers formed words spelled [illegible] under her eyes . . . "Joan Hastings . . . disgrace . . . ruin . . . [illegible]

The little words died on her lips.

"Tiger Love"; Rescued Girl Is Torn by Deep Grief

Her deep brown eyes sweet in their purity as a mountain pool, suddenly drowned before the unexpected flame which answered her gaze. The long lashes trembled on the oval cheeks for an instant and then the tremendous voice continued softly: "Thy servant has told my mother of the great bravery—going forth to hunt the tiger single-handed, to save me when all others had fled. If I can ever serve thee," and once more those thrilling grins stirred him with their straightforward look, "I would sacrifice my life"

He stammered . . . and that was not his usual custom, with either tongue or white.

"It is little, and beside," here he laughed, "I came here to hunt a tiger. And I found one sooner than I expected. I, too, had good fortune. Now I must go and prepare the skin before the jackals from the jungle spoil my trophy."

Suddenly he spoke in English, as a test.

"I wonder if you would let me have the little amulet of beads upon your arm as a token of this night. I will remember it always, without such a souvenir, and yet that would be pleasant. I will give you five rupees in exchange for it, so that you may buy many beads when you reach the city."

The girl's sweet eyes blinked in bewilderment.

Her response was in English—but a disappointment.

"I—no—understand. You—you—" and she paused.

For some inexplicable reason he was disappointed. He had hoped against hope that the old musician had lied. In his heart there swept a realization that after all, "East is East and West is West and never the twain shall meet," for she was after a lowly an Indian dancing girl, and whatever chance there might have been to perform some heroic rescue faded out of his mind What was it his affair after all He pointed to the beads about her graceful wrist, drew some rupees from his pocket and proffered them

Promptly the girl removed the beads and handed them.

Yes! She was as mercenary as the rest of the mendicants, he thought. He took them, shoved them into the breast pocket of his white tunic Then he handed the rupees to her But, here was another surprise The look of a wounded fawn came into the deep, dark eyes as she pushed them back. Tears rushed [illegible] ing lashes and he felt abashed.

"I said I would give you [illegible] said in her dialect. "What are beads?"

And a great joy [illegible] his heart, although his mind [illegible] sense told him [illegible] he was letting him self be [illegible] answered simply. "And now I must go and skin my tiger. Good night.

"May the gods ever protect you and bring you that which you most desire," was her soft answer, as he turned away. And he [illegible] back to him many, many times in the days to come. It was the sweetest benison he had ever received, since the days at his mother's knee

At the door of the room he turned, and as he stood there in the dull light of the flickering, smoking oil lamps he called to the old woman.

"Mother, be good to your daughter, and guard her against evil," he said. He handed her a fistful of coins and the aged woman knelt before him. The girl was half sitting on the couch now; her deep eyes burned as she regarded him

Never before had she seen such a Rahih, she thought, as she clasped her hand to her throbbing heart Forgotten now was the timidity with had made her droop her eyes before him. There was a boldness in which the [illegible] had walked her in, through all the years of her memory, was [illegible] from her thoughts. Never before had she dared to think [illegible] a [illegible] disturbing things [illegible] surged through her whirling

The [illegible] while man bowed, and one more in that [illegible] man her which somehow sent a warm little flutter through her and disappeared. She turned upon her self, as she sank [illegible] couch.

The old woman leaned over her gently, and murmured soothing words to her. But suddenly the soft, glistening shoulders shook [illegible] Why? But why, my mistress?" was the astounded query "Thou hast been rescued by a gentleman, and tomorrow we will [illegible] ing us to the village [illegible] link [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Mohammedans constitute only one-third of the population in Kansu province, but they are savage fighters. Other Mohammedans, Afghans, living in India under British rule, are also good fighters. If the British would let them, they say they would kill two-thirds of the Hindus and make slaves of the rest. Mohammed's energy survives.

Napoleon Bonaparte "opened careers to talent" and consequently an American girl will marry the cousin of a king, Count Folke Bernadotte.

The original Bernadotte, of humble French parentage, worked his way up in Napoleon's army, and Bonaparte made him king of Sweden. Now one of his descendants will make a fine young American girl part of Sweden's well behaved royalty.

Russia, with territory, resources and future possibilities unlimited, is struggling to change some of her possibilities into real money, and wisely concentrates on her magnificent oil wells.

In the next 12 months Russia will have 12,500,000 tons of oil for sale. A new pipe line will enable her to put gasoline in tank ships at eight cents a gallon.

That may create interesting competition across the water. But don't sell your oil stocks if they are the right kind, having back of them oil in the ground, not promises in the air.

AUCTION BRIDGE
by WILBUR C. WHITEHEAD

EAST passes on the first round, since to bid his Diamond suit would be to deny the normal support that he holds for his partner's Spades. South on the second round rebids Hearts, because of his four-card length, though he has the minimum strength for the re-bid after his partner's failure to assist.

West passing, East on the second round bids three Diamonds. This bid, in connection with his free pass, shows his partner not, only that East has a Diamond bid, but also that he holds exactly minimal support for Spades. With less than a real support East would have denied Spades on the first round, and let go from normal support he would have rebid the Spade bid on the second round instead of showing his Diamonds.

West, correctly visualizing East's holding, then bids three Spades, not in bid of Diamonds, but because Spades is a better game and are because of the knowledge imparted to him that East holds three Spades and sufficient strength to warrant a free bid of three Spades. With such support, game at Spades seemed a possibility or at least as having a better chance than one at Diamonds.

Having lost two tricks, Declarer needs Last Trick 4 trick to secure game and he could afford to lose but one trick more. He must therefore either drop the Queen of trumps in two rounds and so avoid the loss of a trump trick, or he must find the outstanding six trumps in an effort to avoid the loss of a third trick. Assuming West holds all the trumps but the Queen, he can proceed to finesse the Jack. As nothing is to take two rounds of trumps and the Queen is lost, is assured of game even though he lose a Diamond trick.

The subject of the next article will be "Trumping Aces." Have a question to be answered by Mr. Whitehead? Write to him. What does "pre-emptive bid" indicate?

The Rhyming Optimist

By ARLINE MICHAELIS.

THE gloom is soft and sweet the air in this vast room, as though the ceaseless breath of prayer must paring from bloom From some white bloom transcending of all man's flowers, more fair than violet or rose is earthly bowers. And yonder glows within the shrine a golden spark that speaks of Love whose glories shine across the dark. How meaningless the rest would be. A futile dream of incense, painting, melody, without that gleam! In life's great room we fling it so, your life and mine must still keep Love's white spark aglow within thee shrine.

Acid Stomach

Excess acid is the common cause of indigestion. It results in pain and sourness about two hours after eating. The quick corrective is an alkali which neutralizes acid. The best corrective is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 90 years since its invention.

One spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly the many times its volume in acid. It is pleasant and tasteless and its action is quick. You will never rely on crude methods, never continue to suffer, when you learn how quickly, how pleasantly this premier method acts. Please let it show you—now.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any druggistore.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

A LOVER'S QUARREL

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am very much in love with a girl of eighteen.

I have known her for three years and it seems that from the very first we loved each other. Because of my circumstances I have not been able to be with her very often or show her a good time.

For the last year she has been going about with a young man he can take her out and spend money on her. She has told me a number of times that she loves me alone but this last year she has drifted farther and farther away, until three months ago, when we had a grave misunderstanding.

I know it will be impossible for me to love anyone but her, but it seems she has ceased to care.

Would it help matters if I were to ask her to have a heart-to-heart talk with me and find out just where I stand?

I am worried sick over the thought of losing her. Please give me your advice.

"BOATS" M.

WERE you in the wrong in the "grave misunderstanding"? If so, tell your friend so and ask to begin all over again. If you were even partly to blame, tell her how much you regret the quarrel. That is all you can do, except devote yourself faithfully to your work, so that you will get ahead quickly and soon be in a position to give her good times within reason.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

BY HELEN ROWLAND

LOVE-MAKING, like playing the violin, requires a lot of technique, long practice and real inspiration. And, even then, a man must have an early start in order to be an expert.

Sometimes a girl feels that it's almost a shame to title a man who can stake a tent, reef a sail and ride a mettlesome hunter, and pin him down to running a lawn-mower, stoking a furnace and walking the baby.

Most modern young couples seem to be looking for a "get-divorced-quick-scheme"—something guaranteed to save them the boredom of "serving time" at the life-sentence of matrimony.

In the average wifes' opinion, there ought to be some way to vaccinate a husband against other vamps—and every bona fide blonde should wear a bell around her neck.

After a few years of marriage, it takes an alarm to arouse a husband's imagination or awaken his curiosity—usually the flash of rivalry in another man's eyes.

Ever since Adam complimented Eve's first fig-leaf-creation, woman has longed to have her clothes admired; and the average husband's "Alright, I guess," has fallen like sand bags on her vanity.

It is easy enough to quicken a man's pulse, these petting days; but how, as always, you have to raise love from the lower plane to a high altitude before his HEART is affected.

Many a man's romantic enthusiasm for a clever woman has been punctured by the stab of her pointed wit.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Sir:

Please campaign against the silly talkies. A year ago the movies meant something—with their soft music, darkened auditoriums and bedroom scenes which permitted patrons to doze comfortably. Now you no sooner fall asleep than a voice, squawking out of some actor's vest pocket, shouts, "Montmorency Montgomery, you have deceived this woman." And you wake up with a start.

AN APPEAL TO YOUR BETTER SELF

OCCLE OCCLEWITZ could have attended any school he liked—but he chose the Frisby School of Penmanship because he didn't want to turn out to be a no good bum, hanging around pool halls. The Frisby School builds characters. When Occle goes out into the world he will carry the Frisby Badge of Merit, which is given to all graduates. He will also get a Certificate of Good Citizenship, in a pin seal case, and a watch and chain, which is sold to accredited students on an easy payment plan. Why not send your boy to the Frisby School? Special rates to under-developed children.

The whole world knows Aspirin as an effective antidote for pain. But it's just as important to know that there is only one genuine Bayer Aspirin. The name Bayer is on every tablet, and on the box. If it says Bayer, it's genuine; and if it doesn't, it is not! Headaches are dispelled by Bayer Aspirin. So are colds, and the pain that goes with them; even neuralgia, neuritis, and rheumatism promptly relieved. Get Bayer—at any drugstore—with proven directions.

BOSTON BANK MEN TO MEET IN JERSEY

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

Investment Bankers Association of America meets October 16-19 at Atlantic City in its annual convention. Henry R. Hayes, former Boston banker, of Stone & Webster and Blodgett, Inc., is president. Golf, by the way, will not interfere with the sessions, as the official program declares: "All golf courses will be closed during business sessions."

Golf cuts a big figure, however, in the Investment Bankers' gathering. There is, for example, the New Orleans Cup, held by the winner one year, but with possession becoming permanent if it is won three times by the same individual. To date no one has won it twice. Last year it was captured by C. D. Weathers of H. M. Byllesby & Co. of Boston.

Hornblower & Weeks, 60 Congress st., Boston, chairman; Mitchell Johnson, Chase & Co., 10 Congress st., Boston; Clarance M. Warner, Bliss & Co., Inc., 35 Congress st., Boston, New Haven, investment bankers) will attend the convention.

Two former Boston bankers have just returned from abroad. They are Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank of New York, and Albert H. Wiggin, chairman of the Chase National Bank. President Mitchell says: "We are enjoying enormous prosperity in America and I am convinced nothing can impede the progress we are making. In Europe, improvement is still going ahead but it will be few exceptions countries abroad are rapidly recovering from their postwar problems." Other speakers from abroad were George Gordon Crawford, president of Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Co., and Will Johnston, chairman of the board of Postum Co., Inc.

The first meeting of the Bankers mortgage and Investment Company of Boston, Inc., was held at the offices of Soule & Company. First National Building, Boston, and the following officers were elected: George H. S. Soule, president; J. Rikker Spencer, vice-president; Walter J. O'Donnell, treasurer. The directors are the above officers, together with Arthur E. Dorr, Hollis Hallowell, thomas E. Proctor 2nd, William H. Short and John P. Wright. This company has been incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts with an authorized capital of $250,000 and has started business with a paid in capital of $50,000. It proposes to handle mortgage stock in the future. The company will deal in stocks, bonds, notes, mortgages, etc.

Although Best & Co. has risen from $53.25 this year, since around the time its merits were first outlined in this column, to a high of $54.62, it is still being favored in many quarters for further advance. Just now the stock is below its 1923 high. It buys $3 a year, but that is only a part of the story, as earnings raise is comparable with the advance in the Filene common issue.

RICKARD WILL STAR DEMPSEY IN FILM

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Copyright, 1923, by Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 11.—The retirement of Jack Dempsey from the prize fight ring is reported to mean a loss of $1,000,000 in gate receipts to Tex Rickard. Rickard admits that the public will not pay the old-time prices to see other fighting gentlemen, so Tex has remained only one thing for him to do. That is to seek another way of making a million. That way, Rickard figures, is to make motion pictures.

Maybe you think Rickard is a male Pollyanna when he picks on the screen as his first love. He is. Before after it ceases to function as a stage idea. Perhaps David Belasco will figure that one picture will help the other.

MONTE BLUE is playing in great luck. He is to have two beautiful ladies for "No Defense." Kathryn Carver, the blond and very good looking wife of Adolphus Menjou, has been signed by Warner Brothers to play one of the important parts. I know because I saw her at the studio.

May McAvoy, just between you and me, is to be Blue's leading lady. For some reason the McAvoy-Blue combination has not come up between Marie Prevost and Columbia Pictures. Marie was all ready to play the lead in "The College Coquette" when a little question of clothes and other things came up. Marie had one idea and Jack Cohn had another. Even Henry Clay, the great pacifier, could not have adjusted their differences so they did the wise thing, and decided to go it alone.

Cohn has hopes of being able to get Marceline Day. Meanwhile, Hugh Allen and Norman Kerry, who were mentioned as negotiating with Cohn, have been signed and are waiting for the leading lady to go on with the picture. We'll let you know about Marceline later.

JUST beats all the way these "Extra" girls from the Wild West swap heroines. Mexico has found a girl who is used to riding and be a "Wild Horse" heroine. Fox Film will be good at another. Tom Mix, who will be starred in "The Drifter" with Belle Bennett, directed by F. B. O., has engaged Kathleen Collins as his leading lady.

Kathleen Collins has been Ken Maynard's leading lady in most of the Western thrillers. She happens to be Big Boy Williams' wife in private life. What a blow to the gals who know that Big Boy is single. It's going to cause many a heartache in many a home.

Which is the way by, is looking mighty fit these days. In fact, he looks so well that a number of his pals have solicitously asked if he wouldn't like to put on a bout with Will Morrissey at any time, any place.

JOSEPH SCHENCK went quietly to the hospital last night to have his tonsils removed. Just at this moment he has my sympathy, for while a tonsil operation sounds like the simplest thing in the world, I can think of nothing that hurts more. Schenck's physician will be at the Good Samaritan Hospital a few days, but I am sure he will be glad to get telegrams and letters from his friends. We all like to hear from our friends when we are enjoying ill health.

SAMUEL GOLDWYN has finally consented to give formal publication the name of the dramatist who will write the dialogue for Vilma Banky's new picture. Sam could have told me just a week yesterday, but he is a good salesman. He held no secrets from his staff in this way, and since I hate to disappoint him I am going to print the name of the dramatist. Hereon help me if all the other producers adopt Sam's tactics.

Fred Hickman has been engaged by Goldwyn to write the Banky dialogue. If you wish to look in "Who's Who," you will find out that he has done. Sam didn't have time to tell me. Rupert McIntyre has gone East to engage a cast for Sam's next. It's going to be an all-talkie.

The publicity department says the title is "Children—Fifth Avenue." Sam mentions "Lazy Daze in Heaven." Personally, I don't think either name will be used.

THAT New York trip that Corinne Griffith has been secretly cherishing for months, has just gone sadlomentously by the gut works for a living even if she is a star she has to do what the boss says and that's why "Seven Days to Children" goes into production immediately. She has left for San Francisco with Walter Kingsley, her manager-husband, and from thence to Truckee for a little holiday, returning to Los Angeles October 15 in time to start production.

Forrest Halsey, who knows the stage as well as the screen, is writing the play sequences for this, for you see, "Saturday's Children" is to be part film and part stage. Corinne's first, also Gregory La Cava's first direction of a sound picture.

NATIONAL POLICIES OF THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and promote the peace of the world.
2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election of United States Senators in numbers proportionate to the population of each State, but no State to have less than two Senators. A reapportionment of Congressional representation immediately after every census, or in case of the failure of Congress so to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of population for each representative in each case to be that of the existing Congress.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defence.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish illiteracy among the people of the United States, and the creation of a Secretary of Education.
5. Necessary measure to secure the election of Congress in November and its instal lation on the 1st of January following, and the inauguration of a President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

Tory Plot Exposed

French Government Testifies to Service Hearst Staff Man Rendered to His Country

On September 20 the Paris correspondent of the Hearst newspapers cabled to this country the terms of a secret agreement between French and British naval authorities, directed against the interests of the United States.

There was never any question of the authenticity of the document published, a circular letter from the French Foreign Office to French ambassadors in the principal countries of the world.

It revealed France as ready to stand by Great Britain at the next "disarmament conference" and vote to let Great Britain have all the small cruisers she wanted, while limiting the number of larger cruisers, the only kind the United States can use effectively.

In return, England agreed to vote for no limitation of small submarines, which France wants, but to vote for limitation of large submarines, the kind that are practicable for the United States Navy.

Also—it has since been revealed—England is to desert the former British-American contention that in limiting land armies the number of trained reserves shall be counted. England will now vote to disregard the millions of French reservists trained under the French conscript system, and pretend that the French military strength is measured by the number of conscripts actually under arms today.

It is the old system of secret agreements, trading, log-rolling, back scratching, which has characterized Europe for centuries. It is secret diplomacy in capital letters.

If we seek words to condemn the Anglo-French pact we find them in the indignation expressed by British newspapers against the British Government for deserting the United States and aligning itself with France:

MANCHESTER GUARDIAN—"The principle of naval limitation by categories of ships is sound enough, but it is absurd to suppose that it can be made to apply to only those classes of ships which we don't want ourselves to build."

DAILY NEWS—"If Sir Austen Chamberlain really found the compromise hopeful, he must be more innocent than anyone thought. It gives Britain unlimited small cruisers and France unlimited small submarines, but gives America nothing that she wanted."

DAILY EXPRESS—"Once again the United States becomes the channel through which the British people are privileged to learn of the engagement entered into by their own government. The first precise details of the famous 'compromise' appeared after weeks of stupefying mystification in a New York newspaper (New York American)."

LONDON TIMES—"Old-fashioned diplomacy is slow to learn that times have changed."

This newspaper is satisfied with the part it played in exposing the plot of the British Tory Government to ally England with France instead of with America. The chorus of protests of newspapers in both the Anglo-Saxon countries is eloquent evidence of what the people themselves think about it. By arresting and deporting our Paris correspondent the French Government testifies to the service he rendered his country.

DIVISION CAPTAINS HAVE INSTRUCTED TRAFFIC OFFICERS TO GIVE THE MAYOR'S CAR THE RIGHT OF WAY.
WHY NOT RATE THE MAYORS ACCORDING TO THEIR IMPORTANCE?
BANK OF FAMOUS RIGHT OF WAY NO. 337
BACK! IT'S THE MAYOR'S CAR!
THERE IS NO TELLING WHERE THIS THING MAY END
IF THIS CASTE SYSTEM CONTINUES.
WHAT'S THE MATTER, YOU DON'T GET TO THE FIRE?
WE HAVE GOT TO WAIT OUR TURN. THE LEGISLATURE IS ON THE WAY TO A PICNIC, AND EVERY ONE OF THEM HAS THE RIGHT OF WAY OVER US!
I'D LIKE TO HAVE A RIGHT OF WAY OUT!
SORRY, BUT YOU'LL HAVE TO WAIT TILL LATER. THE MAYOR WANTS A TOOTH FILLED DENTISTS, MAY GET THE IDEA.
I'D LIKE T' SEE TH' MAYOR GIVEN TH RIGHT UV WAY FER A CHANGE. TH' TAXICABS HEV HED IT LONG ENUFF!
I'M GLAD THAT MAYORS DON'T FLY!
WHY NOT IN RESTAURANTS? RIGHT OF WAY FOR THE MAYOR'S FOOD, ORDERED BY MANAGER
"THERE IS GETTING TO BE MORE ADVANTAGES TO FLYING, EVERY DAY," SAYS PILOT MIKE HARLOW.

ON THINKING IN "LOWER CASE"

By DR. FRANK CRANE

MR. HARTWELL, of Spring Valley, New York, has issued a little pamphlet called "Democracy With a Small D."

He points out that while in some cases the use of a capital is a mere fad, as in the case of the four seasons, spring, summer, autumn, and winter, there are times when the use of a capital has a certain connotation.

When one uses a capital N for nation or a small s for state you judge that he is either a federalist or a states right man.

Republican and Democrat implies a party man, while republican and democrat allude to a certain theory of government.

Nation and state imply that the state is a part of the Nation which is paramount, while state and nation lays the emphasis on the state and not the nation.

He says that republicanism and democracy do not suggest partisanship and should be encouraged.

President Wilson, in his opinion, made a fundamental mistake in always thinking of democracy in terms of the Democratic party.

He was so much a Democrat that he refused to co-operate with the Republicans.

The United States is the only government which did not have a coalition Cabinet. In every other country, under the stress of war, partisanship was thrown aside and in some nations representatives of every party were received in the Cabinet. In our country only Democrats were permitted to advise the President.

The result was that his heart was broken and he failed, because he spelled democracy with a big D.

For this reason our author thinks that young people in their thinking should think "lower case," as the printers say.

In other words they should hesitate to line themselves up with a party as long as possible.

The DeCoverley papers told about the evils of party spirit, and Washington warned us against party spirit and entangling alliances.

No one party or church has all the truth. Each emphasizes certain phases of the truth. Each in a measure is right, but to line up with one in antagonism to the other leads us to wrong extremes.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

EVENING in New York's Central Park—

A warm, fall evening with a violet sky above the shadowed masses of the trees.

Against the sky an old gray of stone, an obelisk carved beside the Nile, how many thousand years ago!

Carved by brown, manna hands, stained with the sweat of driven, naked slaves, back in the dim beginnings of the human tale. And standing now in this fierce vortex of our modern life.

A violet sky, an old gray spike of stone—and suddenly across the sky, above the spike of stone, a darting beam of light. A searchlight playing from the roof of some hotel, sweeping its radiance far out through the night.

That crumbling souvenir from man's dim past, that blazing beacon of the days to come, what a long trail links rock to ray!

What a long trail from those few colonies around the muddy Nile to a whole world, lit by that blazing ray—

What a vast change from darkened savage minds, toiling on deserts under bloody whips, to the enlightened minds that found that beam and harnessed it to serve our human need!

Both rock and ray sprang from man's little brain.

The scientist who hurls his light across the sky is kin to that poor slave who carved the stone. The soul that made the carving on the stone held also the small spark that blazed into that light.

I like to think of that when I am sick of life and wonder if we're getting anywhere.

I think of all the stupid things we do, our ignorance and cruelty and fear, our lies, our greediness and our conceit, and wonder if we're better than red ants.

And then again I see that flashing ray above that crumbling spike of old gray stone—

And something quickens me to hope and pride.

For if the poor dumb minds that made that stone—

Could some day grow to make that ray—

We, too may grow from darkness into light.

And as the seeds of radiance lay in them who toiled so darkly there beside the Nile, so may the seeds of greatness live in us, within the darkness of our savagery.

I think of that and life's worth while again. And human beings are no longer ants, but brave adventurers upon a mountain trail.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

The present contains nothing more than the past, and what is found as the effect was already in the cause. —Bergson.

Do you know what a pessimist is? A man who thinks everybody as nasty as himself and hates them for it. —George Bernard Shaw.

Nothing is achieved before it be thoroughly attempted. —Sidney.

Light is the task when many share the toil. —Homer.

Language is but a poor bull's-eye lantern wherewith to show off the vast cathedral of the world. —Stevenson.

Our words have wings, but fly not where we would. —George Eliot.

It is as easy to draw back a stone thrown with force from the hand as to recall a word once spoken. —Menander.

A man should never be ashamed to own he has been in the wrong, which is but saying, in other words, that he is wiser today than he was yesterday. —Swift.

Borrow trouble for yourself, if that's your nature, but don't lend it to your neighbor. —Kipling.

A physician can sometimes parry the scythe of death, but has no power over the sand in the hour-glass. —Poinsi.

That which makes the vanity of others unbearable to us is that which wounds our own. —La Rochefoucauld.

A great ship asks deep waters. —Herbert.

By O.O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—There is no other American city responding so enthusiastically to the nonsensical as this whooping village. New York has what impolite sneerers call "a tabloid audience"—a definite majority that will knock off work for the day to see anything different.

This overwhelming curiosity is symbolized by the thousands who sit up all night in uncomfortable seats to see the monotonous six-day bicycle race. The recent dance derby attracted a crowd at the finish that required all available police reserves.

The mere announcement a famous motion-picture star will arrive at one of the railroad stations will fill the rotunda. And a Fifth ave. parade brings business to a full stop on that thoroughfare. Windows are broken by the press of crowds.

The disgraceful saboteurs marking the public admittance to the bier of the late Valentino would not likely have occurred in any other city in the world. Even today the cafe where Judd Gray and Ruth Snyder had their first flirtation is patronized heavily by the purely curious.

The scene of any murder mystery will have its half circle of curious for weeks. Two years after the famous Elwell crime a group daily clotted across from his home in the West 70's. A big theatrical premiere has a larger sidewalk crowd than its first night audience.

These demonstrations are participated in almost solely by natives and the personnel is not what one might expect. You see well-dressed men and women of obvious intelligence enduring all sorts of discomfort merely to satisfy what seems to be an uncontrollable urge.

There are occasions when this curious gesture becomes quite ghoulish, as when, following a midnight electrocution at Sing Sing, a hushed crowd huddles in the snow and the rain outside the gates just to see the executioner drive from the scene of his legalized murder.

YOUNG Chuck Connors is following in the Thespic trail of his celebrated parent so long the self-styled Mayor of Chinatown. Connors, Jr., is now appearing in a play dealing with Bowery life of another day. The original Connors bore the name of George Washington Patrick O'Connor, but was better known by the nickname "Chuck," which came from his love for "chuck steaks," a delicacy cooked along the East Side curbs.

A NEW YORK cat that perhaps looked at more literary kings than any other feline has passed to its reward. It was known as Felix to hundreds who visited the apartment of Zoe Beckley, the writer. Felix had been petted by none other than Queen Marie of Rumania and napped in the laps of such immortals as Sinclair Lewis, Kathleen Norris, Irvin Cobb, Michael Arlen and on trips to England paid visits to George Bernard Shaw, H. G. Wells and J. M. Barrie.

ZOE BECKLEY, incidentally, was a Wall Street stenographer who decided she wanted to be a newspaper writer and made the grade. She found time at her typewriter to write articles about the brisk business world in which she lived and these she carried on her way home in the evening to the late T. E. Niles, a managing editor who gave Rube Goldberg, C. L. Edson, Grantland Rice and many others their first chance in New York. Her efforts were rather terrible, but she refused to give up her ambition and at the end of a year she developed into such a finished writer she left stenography flat. She is the wife of Joseph Gollomb, a popular fictionist.

THE community brown stone front is a new wrinkle in living. Young bachelors find they can club together and rent an entire house as cheaply as individual apartments. A community dining room and community servants enhances the idea and there is the added value of no disturbing neighbors.

Columbus

"Columbus clung to his conviction, fought for the opportunity to put it to the test and staked everything on the results. It is one of the tragedies with which the human story is replete that in his own time he was repaid with little else than disgrace, disappointment and ignominy.

"He did not live to know that he had added a New World to the heritage of the race. The lands he found were given the name of another. He could not realize, of course, that his achievement had marked the opening of a new era and that historians would presently be dating the modern epoch from the day of his discovery.

"Yet today Columbus holds place as one of the few greatest among men. Probably of all achievements that may be credited to a single individual that of Columbus would be properly accepted as the foremost in history.

"With every celebration of this anniversary we all realize more clearly the voyage of Columbus and the expansion of civilization to the outlying parts of the world.

"It was fitting that a son of Italy should have been marked by destiny for this service; that Italy, so long the seat of ancient civilization, should thus pass on the torch to a new era and a new world.

"It is the fortune of our country to have attracted thither an impressive number of the sons and daughters of this land where leadership and lofty talent have so long found noble fruition.

"They have contributed richly of their industry, their love for liberty, their genius for the sciences, the arts and the humanities.

"They have given much to making our country what it is, and in turn I am sure they have found advantage in the opportunities which this new country has afforded."
